Prof. M. V. O'Shea Opens
Convention of Western

Association

Session at High School

The true aim of the school should be to make the pupils see the realities of life and to preserve harmony between the ordinary school work and that of more practical lines, said Prof. M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin this morning, speaking on "Individuality" before the Western Wisconsin Teachers' association which convened at the high school building today. On account of having to catch an early train, Prof. O'Shea was compelled to cut his address short but in his usual clear cut style and diction he gave an intensely interesting discussion of the different types of individuals found in the school room.

There is the motor or executive type," said Prof. O'Shea "which finds the routine of the teacher burdensome and is a poor success as a scholar but who leads on the playground and in places where he can use his hands and body. Opposed to this kind of pupil is the reflective type that excels in the study room but who is a distinct failure or mollycoddle when it comes to holding his own in physical contests. The sparkling mind which reasons on the surface of the brain and the deep searching intellect which goes to the root of things differ further in that the former always sees the way around a difficulty whereas the latter sees the way through."

Force of Personality

Prof. O'Shea cited numerous interesting cases of students and business men to illustrate his points. There is the dynamic individual who dominates every situation, who cannot be swayed enough to write his own letters but by force of his personality succeeds in business.

The period of development of children should be carefully watched by teachers said the speaker in order that wrong attitudes may not be developed which will have a lasting effect. All persons should have a degree of self-assertiveness and confidence in order that their own individuality may not be submerged in the struggle for existence.

Fowler Elected President

At the executive session held after the address this morning, Prof. F. H. Fowler, principal of the Hamilton school of La Crosse, was elected president over F. C. Bray of Galesville, to succeed W. C. Polburn of Rhineland. The vote was close, Prof. Fowler receiving 145 votes against 127 for Mr. Bray. There were a few scattering votes. The other officers will be chosen by committee.

Following the address, President Colburn appointed several committees and announced the program for the afternoon. Miss Cora Vandewater of the La Crosse normal, sang "Saint Saens' 'My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice'" in an artistic manner and responded to an encore.

Departmental Session

This afternoon departmental sessions were held in different rooms of the high school.

NORMAL CONCERT MUSICAL SUCCESS

No Dull Moments in Rendition of Mendelssohn Oratorio "St. Paul"

SOLOISTS' WORK OF HIGH MERIT

Gustaf Holmquist Earns Much Praise by His Interpretation of Difficult Role

(By Isadore Tippmann)

The establishment of a state normal school in this city has to a considerable extent improved the low state of public interest and appreciation in and of musical matters and doings in this community. Not only has the management of the institution during its comparatively short existence given the students of the school and the music needing part of our population entertainments by celebrated musical organizations and distinguished vocal and instrumental soloists, but the school itself offers also splendid opportunities for vocal musical culture. The concerts which from time to time have been given by the vocal teachers of the school, with the normal school chorus as the principal musical factor, have ever been a living proof of the sincerity and ability of the musical instructors and the enthusiasm and musical ambition of the members of the chorus.

But few realize what an enormous amount of painstaking work, what great expenditure of nervous energy, had to be sacrificed by the one who undertook to prepare a local chorus until it should be ready to present in acceptable form a choral masterpiece like Rossini's "Stabat Mater" or Mendelssohn's Oratorio, "St. Paul."

The last named work was given last night at the normal school auditorium before a very large audience. Miss Harriet B. Oltman directed and the chorus had the soloistic assistance of Mme. Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Miss Cora Vandewater, contralto; Mr. David Dunbar, tenor, and Mr. Gustaf Holmquist, bass.

The work of the chorus throughout the evening was most praiseworthy and Miss Oltman guided the large body of young singers with firmness and painstaking care. Miss Oltman evidently entered into her work with genuine musical enthusiasm, for she succeeded at all times to make the work of the chorus interesting to the audience and there were absolutely no dull moments, which in the presentation of a work of such large dimensions means much.

The four assisting soloists were satisfying in the highest degree. There was that wonderful Swedish basso, Gustaf Holmquist, who sang the part of "Saint Paul" in a way which compelled absolute admiration. Mr. Holmquist as a singer has many fine qualities, but chief among them are his artistic sincerity, and a chastity of style in everything he offers. That his vocal accomplishments are beyond reproach goes without saying.

A very agreeable surprise was the tenor of Mr. David Dunbar. Disappointments about tenors have grown to be quite common in the musical world but Mr. Dunbar won his audience by his musical voice and artistic style from the start and in the aria "Be thou faithful unto Death," he was positively exquisite.

Mme. Lucille Stevenson sang the solo soprano part of the oratorio with infallible good taste and the lady must be credited with possessing a voice of fine quality and artistic finish. Miss Cora Vandewater had only a small solo part to perform, which no doubt many regretted, for the young lady was so genuinely charming in the manner in which she sang her short number, that she must be pronounced absolutely worthy to be in the distinguished company she enjoyed last evening.

A weighty word of appreciation is due to Miss Clara Larson, the pianist of the occasion. The young lady played with fine rhythmic precision and commendable musical understanding, thus contributing a good share to the success of the event. Miss Oltman, the soloists and the pianist were tendered beautiful floral offerings during the intermission and that these most lovely children of mother nature were highly appropriate as tokens of sincere appreciation, was shown by the enthusiastic approval of the audience. Miss Oltman, the chorus, the soloists and the pianist deserve the hearty thanks of the musical community for an evening of absolutely beautiful music.

Old Precedent Broken; President Talks To Congress

President Wilson delivering message to Congress.

When President Wilson delivered his message in person to congress the other day he broke a precedent which had been growing for 112 years. Little complaint was heard from congressmen, however. Senators and representatives were all present in the House of Representatives to hear the address, and the galleries were crowded. The last president to speak personally to congress was John Adams, the second president.

DANCE HALL UNDER PROBE'S SPOTLIGHT

Illinois White Slave Commission Investigates Halls as Menace to Girls

GIRL TELLS OF HER DOWNFALL

Says Even the Best of Established Dry Goods Store in La Crosse in 1870; Known All Over the Northwest

CHICAGO, April 11.—Dance halls as a menace to young girls, was the subject of the probe of the Illinois white slave commission today. The senators arrived late at the hearing and it was announced that they had devoted last evening to a personal inspection of the Chicago dance halls and their patrons. Practically all of the Chicago dance halls have either direct or indirect connection with bars and have been bitterly assailed by reformers as a potent cause of the downfall of girls.

Strong pressure has been brought by the representatives of big business to hunt the committee off on a new trail and stop the testimony regarding the low wages paid girls in the commercial houses of Chicago. The committee, however, has so far refused to stop the probe.

Witness Girl

The first witness today was a pretty seventeen year old girl whose name was suppressed. Her parents separated when she was fifteen, she said, and she came to Chicago with an aunt.

She met a girl named Anna Mack, she testified, who wore good clothes and apparently had plenty of money. The Mack girl introduced her to a man named Wallace.

Wallace took her to a cafe one night. She drank two glasses of beer and became unconscious. When she came to, she was in a hotel.

"Wallace came in just after I woke up," she said. "He told me I had been sick and he took me to the hotel. I knew that I was no longer a good girl."

After her experience with Wallace, she said she met an artist who paid her $15 to pose twice in the nude for him. After the second posing the artist took her to a hotel for the night, she said. Later she went to hotels with other men.

"I have visited dance halls for several years," she said. "Men and women meet there. The hotels nearby will furnish them rooms without asking any questions. The man goes in a front door and the girl in a back or side door. They meet upstairs."

Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, settlement worker at the Hull House, gave the commission a list of 200 Chicago dance halls that sell liquor to girls under 16 years of age. She said that all these halls should be put under supervision.

Supply Girls to Men

"Our investigators tell us that male visitors are supplied with girls at these dance halls," said Mrs. Britton.

Even the best of the halls were in neighborhoods where lodging houses would furnish rooms to all comers. She thought that the elimination of return checks by dance hall proprietors

CARPET COMPANY OWNER IS CALLED

Marcus Anderson, Well Known Business Man, Succumbs to Complicated Illness

WAS A PIONEER BUSINESS MAN

Marcus Anderson, 108 South Seventh street, died at a local hospital last night at 7:30, after a few months' illness. Death was caused by a complication of diseases.

Mr. Anderson was born in Storenness Romerige, Norway in 1840, coming to this country in 1858, settling in La Crosse. Soon after coming to La Crosse he established the firm of Anderson Carpet company, of which he was at the time of his death proprietor. He is survived by a wife and one son.

The body will lay in state from 1 to 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the First Congregational church. The funeral services will be held in the church at 3 o'clock. Rev. Henry Faville will officiate. Interment will be made in the Oak Grove mausoleum.

Marcus Anderson came to La Crosse from Christiania, Norway, at the age of eighteen. He had received a common school education in the old country and was well equipped to take up the life of a merchant. He added to his knowledge by constant reading and the study of business methods. He always prided himself on keeping abreast of the times.

He commenced business as a clerk for John Servis in a clothing store and continued there for two years. He was afterward employed as salesman by Joseph Gutman in the dry goods and clothing business, which position he held for eight years. At the expiration of this time Mr. Anderson, in 1868, opened a millinery and fancy goods store in Decorah, Iowa, in partnership with B. O. Daley. He remained there but one year, returning to the employment in the Gutman store in La Crosse.

In the fall of 1870 Mr. Anderson opened a dry goods store in the Esplanade block under the firm name of Marcus Anderson and Company. At that time he employed four clerks. In 1873 he rented the building in which the Anderson Carpet company is now located.

Mr. Anderson's strict business integrity and inherent fairness won him a reputation more than local in its extent. He was known all over the northwest as one of the greatest retail merchants of his day.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 11.—Miss Marie Von Klein, a sister of E. C. Von Klein, said to be held in Chicago declared today that she does not know whether the prisoner is her brother. Von Klein's wife could not be located today although she is said to be at Fergus Falls, Minn.

HABEAS CORPUS IS ASKED FOR CHILD

Grandmother of Florence Bunting Seeks to Possess Child Through Power of Writ

LONG DRAWN FIGHT FOR CUSTODY

Mother Fled with Child to Minneapolis and Refuses to Return to La Crosse

The long drawn fight over the custody of little Florence Bunting, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bunting, formerly of La Crosse, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Florence Bunting of this city, took a new turn yesterday when depositions in a habeas corpus proceedings were taken before Court Commissioner Otto Schlabach. The case is officially known as "the state of Minnesota ex rel Florence J. Bunting, plaintiff, vs. Olga Bunting, defendant," and the final decision will be made in the circuit court at Minneapolis next Wednesday after the reading of the depositions taken here yesterday.

About a year ago the first proceedings for the custody of the child were heard before Court Commissioner Alfred Harrison and after a short trial the case was adjourned for four days. During the recess Olga Bunting, the mother of the cause of litigation, fled with the child to Minneapolis, and refused to return. The grandmother, Mrs. Florence Bunting, persisted in her attempts to gain possession of her granddaughter but met with no success and she finally resorted to the habeas corpus proceedings.

The parents of the child, Harvey and Olga Bunting, separated about three years ago, the husband going to Texas to live and the wife going to Minneapolis. The child was left with the grandmother by mutual agreement. About two years ago Olga Bunting is said to have come to La Crosse and kidnapped her child, taking her back to Minneapolis with her. The grandmother alleged that the breaking up of the family and because of her fast living was not a fit custodian for her granddaughter. When the case was up for trial before Court Commissioner a year ago the grandmother took charge of the child until the mother fled with her to Minneapolis.

Depositions were taken yesterday from eight witnesses, all of whom testified as to the character of Olga Bunting.

PAT CROWE MAY GO TO WAUPUN

Notorious Kidnap of Wisconsin Senator Sees Omaha Millionaire's Boy Faces Burglary Charge Here

SUIT OF CLOTHES IS STOLEN

Question Whether He Broke Into Room or Door Was Left Open

The fine point of whether the door of Robert Staley, a roomer at 724 King street, was locked last Sunday afternoon or whether it had been left open may decide whether Pat Crowe, famous kidnaper of Edward Cudahy, son of the millionaire packer of Omaha several years ago, shall serve a term in prison at Waupun or whether he goes to the La Crosse county jail for a month or two.

Pat Crowe was arrested by Patrolman John Wendling last Tuesday for being drunk. He was lodged in the police station to sober up and has been there ever since. Late yesterday afternoon Robert Staley complained to the police that his room had been entered and a suit case, a new suit of clothes and a sweater had been stolen. Apparently there was no clew to the thief until Henry Muth, saloon keeper on the Mormon Coulee road, telephoned to the police that the stolen property had been left at his place Monday by a stranger. His description of the stranger is said to have identified Pat Crowe as the thief.

Crowe Denies Theft

Accused of the theft Crowe denied all knowledge of the affair, saying that he was too drunk at the time to know what he was doing. Witnesses, however, are said to have identified Crowe as the man who left the case and suit at Muth's place. Although Crowe was not seen at Staley's rooming place it is believed he may have entered the room during Staley's absence. If Crowe broke into the room the charge lodged against him will be burglary, a state's prison offense, but if the room was left open the charge will be larceny, punishable by a term in the county jail.

Crowe won national fame several years ago by forcing the Cudahy family to pay him $25,000 ransom for the return of Edward Cudahy, whom he kidnapped. After receiving this large sum he went to Chicago and proceeded to travel the primrose path. His money soon played out and he found that his friends of the hour were not friends in poverty, and drink dragged him down to the lowest levels. At one time he was known as one of the cleverest criminals in the country but now he makes a precarious living at odd jobs.

Concerted at Mission

Crowe was here several weeks ago and created a sensation by professing religious conversion at the City Mission. Shortly after he left for Winona and Minneapolis, where he was sentenced to sixty days in the work house for vagrancy. After serving a few weeks there he was released because the superintendent said he was corrupting several of the other and younger prisoners. He is the dissipated remnant of a fine looking man and when he came here last Sunday he was nicely dressed but his riotous living soon changed his appearance. He will probably be arraigned in county court tomorrow.

N. Hoover of Pierce City, Mo., was burned about the body and his silk underclothes completely destroyed. Martin Donald, St. Joseph, Mo., was mentally affected by the shock. OSCAR TAUBER RECOVERING Word was received in La Crosse today that Oscar Tauber of this city is recovering from a sudden illness which attacked him while performing his duties as assistant state treasurer in Madison a week ago. Mr. Tauber was taken to the hospital as the result of an illness which resembled a slight stroke of paralysis but it was learned today that no serious consequences are anticipated.

FLOOD FEARS CHECKED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—Fears of a second disastrous flood in the White and Wabash river valleys were allayed today, rain giving way to cold weather which promised to clear. The White river rose two feet from two days' steady drizzle, but would have to climb four feet more to become dangerous.

BOB FINDS FLAW IN WILSON CHOICE

Wisconsin Senator Sees Mistake in Appointment of John Skelton Williams

HAS BIG SYSTEM CONNECTIONS

Asserts that New Assistant Secretary of Treasury Is Approved by Wall Street

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—Under the heading "The System at Work," United States Senator Robert M. La Follette in a signed editorial on the first page of this week's issue of La Follette's Weekly, has the following comment to make on the appointment by President Wilson of John Skelton Williams, as assistant secretary of the treasury:

"Under the Roosevelt and Taft administrations, the combined interests were all-powerful in the treasury department.

System Took Officials

"One after another the high officials of this department filled their places of trust in a manner so acceptable to the system that they were rewarded with lucrative positions at the hands of the money power when the time came for them to retire from the 'public service.' This was more especially true of Roosevelt's appointments, and now, one month after the fourth of March, men are asking: Are the representatives of the interlocking directorates to secure a strangle hold upon the treasury department under the Wilson administration?"

Until a few days ago it was officially announced that Robert Woolley of Virginia would be appointed assistant secretary of the treasury. Mr. Woolley is an able, scholarly gentleman, a student of government finance, a well known publicist who has supported progressive measures.

He was employed by the Stanley committee to make a special investigation of the financial operations of the United States steel trust. In one of his miscellaneous magazine articles, Mr. Woolley reviews the operation of the Washington real estate ring and the connection of Mr. C. C. Glover with its operations.

Glover Opposed Woolley

"Mr. Glover is the president of the Riggs National bank. This is a system bank with very close connections with the National City Bank of New York, the head of the Standard Oil group. Mr. Glover, both for personal reasons and business reasons, was opposed to Mr. Woolley's appointment as assistant secretary of the treasury. Mr. Woolley was not appointed."

"Either Mr. Glover or some one with like interests persuaded President Wilson to appoint John Skelton Williams assistant secretary of the treasury."

"Mr. Williams has qualifications which would be recognized anywhere in Wall street as admirably fitting him for this position. He is a member of the Metropolitan (Millionaires') club of Sixtieth street, New York. He organized the Seaboard Air line railway system and was its president from 1899 to 1904. He is president of the Georgia and Florida Railroad company; a director of the Raleigh & Charleston Railroad company, and chairman of the board of directors. He is president of the bank of Richmond; president of the National Bank of Virginia; a director of the Maryland Casualty company; a director of the Southern Investment company; a director of the Great Britain Railway Development corporation; a director of the Seaboard Air Line Railway company. On the board of directors of the Air line, Mr. Williams is associated with Henry Clay Pierce, Norman B. Ream, B. F. Yoakum and other system representatives."

Wilson Imposed Upon

"It is believed that President Wilson has been imposed upon. Let him beware of such influences. The special interests never sleep; they have their friends in every department. Many of them are known; they should all be hunted down and out. But it will avail little to turn out one man with special interest connections only to appoint another with like affiliations in his place."

ARRAIGN MUSICAS

NEW YORK, April 11.—Three members of the Musica family, Philip, Arthur and George, were arraigned today before Judge Crain on eight indictments charging international bank frauds by which the family of hair importers are alleged to have netted more than $1,000,000. The father, Antonio, was not taken to court as he was reported to be in a dying condition from heart disease in the hospital in the Tombs prison. The trial was set over a week.

YESTERDAY'S WORK IN THE LEGISLATURE

Senate

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—The senate Wednesday night under suspension of the rules passed the Linley bill empowering municipalities to buy street car railways within their boundaries at any time they desire. On motion of Senator G. E. Weigle of Milwaukee his bill appropriating $50,000 for the construction and equipment of a state administration building in the city of Milwaukee was laid over for one week.

The senate passed the Burke bill permitting the shooting of buck deer only and allowing only one to each hunter. The senate passed the bill prepared by District Attorney Yockey of Milwaukee prohibiting any one but druggists and practitioners of medicine, dentistry and veterinary science from having any form of cocaine in his possession. The senate concurred in the Hurlbut joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to permit the state to engage in the business of insurance and not simply act as a trustee for the policy holders of the life insurance fund as under the present law.

The Teasdale bill increasing the minimum saloon license fee from $200 to $500 was re-referred to the committee on state affairs. The joint committee of finance decided to recommend for passage the Rossard bill increasing state aid for county tuberculosis sanatoria from

There was silence again, while the two men stared at each other. From the parlor the jarring sound of the music reached them, inconceivably out of harmony with the seriousness of their mood.

SEES GOOD IN THE FRIEDMANN SERUM

Seattle Investigator Says German Has Taken the Longest Step Ever Taken Toward Cure

WAS PREPARED TO DISBELIEVE

Doctor C. S. Noble Says He Has Been Convinced of Usefulness Against 'His Will

(By Dr. Charles S. Noble. Written for the United Press.)
NEW YORK, April 11.—More than four weeks ago I came to New York with a special commission to investigate and report upon the widely heralded tuberculosis cure of Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann. I came determined to keep my mind free of prejudice, but I must say in frankness that my attitude unavoidably was that of a skeptic. Now, after three weeks of almost daily contact with Dr. Friedmann and attendance at every clinic conducted by him in New York during that period, and after many interviews with subjects treated by him, I am making the following report to the Seattle people interested in my investigation:

I believe that Dr. Friedmann has taken the longest stride that yet has been made in the direction of a certain cure for tuberculosis. I believe that he has a cure for many forms of tuberculosis that heretofore have not been amenable to treatment. I believe his culture will prove especially efficacious in cases of bone and glandular tuberculosis and I expect it to be widely used within the next few years for immunization. From being a skeptic I have become hopeful that time, the only infallible test, will show that the German savant has produced a real cure for the world's greatest scourge—tuberculosis. Whatever short comings Dr. Friedmann may have, he is not a faker. He personally is certain he has a cure. Ultimately a cure for tuberculosis is certain. Dr. Friedmann says he has it. I am inclined after seeing his results to accept his statement until it is disproved.

My first interview with Dr. Friedmann was not reassuring. He was suspicious, resentful of too close questioning and resentful of any attempt to draw him into a scientific discussion of his discovery or his methods. I attended his first clinic. The country already knows of the storm of criticism resulting from that initial demonstration. Like every other American physician, I was stunned by the German's utter disregard of even the elemental dictates of septic surgery. His awkward use of a none too carefully sterilized hypodermic, his painful nervousness and apparent lack of technique naturally heightened the suspicions of the medical fraternity. The newspapers were loud in their criticism. Save that he was less nervous, there was little improvement in the visitor's work at the second clinic; but as the third demonstration there was noticeable improvement, and at each succeeding clinic Dr. Friedmann's use of the needle and his preservation of aseptic conditions has been beyond criticism.

Results Good
Still I saw little to kindle enthusiasm until the end of the first eight day period and it became possible to note results. Even then the unanimity of the optimism of the patients proved nothing because of the traditional optimism of consumptives. But as days went by and the same unbroken train of favorable reports from those treated, continued, it was no longer possible to deny that some wonder was being worked. Patients weakened by night sweats, racked with coughs and burned up with afternoon fever, almost without exception continued to insist that they had obtained relief. They backed up their statements by showing gains in weight, while those who had been carried to clinics with swollen and stiffened legs, demonstrated their improvement by walking about on the hitherto useless limbs.

Gradually the doubters ceased to voice their adverse opinions, but still skeptical, awaited impatiently the government's report. The open suspicion, almost derision that marked the newspapers' and physicians' reception of Dr. Friedmann, changed perceptibly. More interest was shown in the clinics and some of the highest ranking men in New York's medical profession found time to attend them. The climax came at Bellevue, March 22, when an uninterrupted chain of favorable reports from patients, telling of their improvement finally culminated in a round of applause for the formerly derided visitor.

You may wonder at the apparent pleasure and avidity with which the New York medical fraternity and newspapers seized upon the first opportunity to ridicule Dr. Friedmann. The explanation is not difficult.

Friedmann Peculiar
Certainly no crime could be more despicable than that of a man who would maliciously or even carelessly hold out promise of a cure for tuberculosis that he could not fulfill. So important a matter as an announced cure for tuberculosis not only justifies, but actually demands skepticism. In addition to Dr. Friedmann is unquestionably of a peculiar mental make-up. He is far from practical, in a commercial sense, yet he is fully aware of the wonder he has apparently worked and he certainly desires to obtain the legitimate rewards of his work and years of sacrifice devoted to research work. He has not accepted a dollar for his services since he came to New York, but he expects to realize on his discovery, ultimately. Fourteen years' work bending over microscopes in a laboratory have not tended to make him particularly communicative. As the result of these attributes, he was not as frank at first as the newspaper men and physicians thought a genuine world benefactor should be. The result was a storm of criticism. But the young doctor was supremely indifferent to criticism. Instead of being broken in spirit or quitting the country in a huff, he settled down to the task of proving that he has a cure for tuberculosis. Today he has not completely accomplished his object, but he has gone so far in the attempt that he has become the most talked of man of the day in the world's highest medical circles.

SUMMER SESSIONS AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Members of Regular Faculty to Instruct Classes During Special Term

SIX WEEKS BEGINNING JUNE 30

Courses of Benefit to New and Experienced Teachers and Others Seeking Credits

Bulletins will soon be mailed out from the normal school, the popular state institution on the east side of the city, announcing an attractive program of work at its annual summer session of six weeks, beginning June 30.

President F. A. Cotton has announced that most of the teachers comprising the summer school faculty are heads of the departments in the regular school year. This makes possible a high grade of work during the summer term that is on a par with the instruction offered at other times. There is interest too in the announcement that a new member of the summer school faculty is the La Crosse high school principal, Mr. B. E. McCormick, who will teach mathematics and physics.

Several classes of students will be interested in the bulletin. Some must attend a normal school during the summer; others see in the summer session an opportunity to do advanced work in their chosen fields and in professional lines. Among the first are the new teachers who, according to law, must attend some normal school for a period of at least six weeks; also those who are seeking renewal of their three year certificates, or to make credits on second and first grade certificates. Among the second group are those who seek to make normal credits on their regular courses; those who wish to do work for college credit, and many experienced teachers from high schools and grades who enjoy advanced work and the review of professional subjects. Some of the students of the local high school will be interested in the arrangement that will enable them to earn advanced credit or make up missing credit in mathematics and physics, under Mr. McCormick's instruction at the normal school summer session.

Attractive to Parents
The training school this summer will be attractive both to the parents who have children to send and to the students who wish to observe work in the model school. Prof. W. H. Sanders, head of the training school department, is providing not only for the regular summer school rooms under the instruction of competent critic teachers, but also for a room to be devoted to special kindergarten and primary methods, and to organization of school gymnastics and direction of children's play. This room will be in charge of Miss Hitchcock, Miss Dineen and Miss Eustis. Children will attend forenoon sessions only. As the number of children in this room will be limited, parents should speak in advance to any of the three teachers or to Prof. Sanders.

Organization of Courses
For the people who come to the summer session to comply with the requirements of the law governing new teachers, the following subjects will be offered: School management, methods in reading and language, methods in arithmetic and methods in geography. These subjects have to be taken. Opportunity will be given for observation of work in the model school. In addition classes will be organized in agriculture, physiology, grammar and civics. For the students who are preparing for second grade certificates, the following subjects will be given: Physical geography, American literature, English composition and cataloging and use of school library. The subjects for those preparing for first grade certificates are: Algebra, English literature, English history, physics and theory and art of teaching. Observation work is offered also.

Classes for regular normal credit will also be organized in various subjects, as follows: Principles in teaching primary and kindergarten, civics, physical geography, agriculture, library methods, gymnastics and games, botany, composition, psychology, history of education manual training and construction, arithmetic, algebra, school management and school law, child study, nature study, English history, American history, economic history of United States, European history, physiology, grammar, drawing, geometry and pedagogy. Students taking these subjects for regular normal credits will be limited to two subjects except by special permit of faculty. However, one hour a day of library reading or manual training may be taken in addition to the two regular subjects.

For the experienced teachers and others who desire to follow out some line of special work but not to work for normal credits, effort has been made to provide courses that will stimulate interest and scholarship. For their lecture courses will be given in science, literature, history and education. There will be lectures in science with a human interest and an industrial application in economic history lectures and discussions upon such topics as tariff legislation, development of labor organizations, large scale industry, trusts, etc. There will be courses in conversational German and French which will enable students to gain sufficient acquaintance with the grammar and idiom so as to enable them to pursue their future reading without the aid of a teacher.

Professional Courses
Professional courses have been arranged for experienced teachers. In art, science, arithmetic and history courses are arranged for review of principles of teaching used in presenting these several subjects in the grades, with especial attention to the latest methods, devices and materials.

HEROISM.

Not in clanging fights and desperate marches only is heroism to be looked for, but on every railway bridge and fireproof building that is going up today. On freight trains, on the decks of vessels, in cattle yards, on lumber rafts, among the firemen and the policemen, the demand for courage is incessant, and the supply never fails. —William James.

MOTHER DIES AND SON GETS PARDON

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 11.—Peter Erickson, Minneapolis, a prisoner in the state reformatory at St. Cloud since 1909, was pardoned Wednesday by the state board of pardons, but not until after his mother had died at her home in Southeast Minneapolis.

A week ago Erickson was allowed to go to his home after his dying mother had pleaded that she be allowed to see her boy again. The pardon was signed at that time by Governor Eberhart and Chief Justice Brown, but Attorney General Smith was in the east and could not be reached.

Pending his return, Erickson was allowed to remain at his mother's bedside. Yesterday the attorney general returned and his signature made the pardon complete.

AN EYE WITNESS TELLS OF STORM

Miss Jeanette Morgan of Omaha Writes Relatives Vivid Description of Terrible Tornado

PAPERS THERE FAIL TO TELL

Minimize Horrors of Storm to Lessen Suffering of Grief-stricken Readers

In the letter that follows Miss Jeannette Morgan, formerly of La Crosse, who with her mother is now a resident of Omaha, describes as an eye witness the tornado that demolished a portion of that city:

"As to the storm, it is really indescribable and none of the home papers have written nor pictured it as bad as it really is. You read the accounts given in papers and look at the pictures of the wrecked houses and ruined districts and think of what a terrible storm that must have been, but in order to fully realize what a terrible, terrible storm it was you must visit these districts in person.

"Much of the debris has been removed but it will be months before it can all be removed.

"Easter morning was so balmy and nice here—like a day in summer. A friend of mine and I went to church and to an Easter cantata in the same church in the afternoon.

"Before going to the cantata we noticed how very dark the sky was getting and the air so sultry and so much humidity—every breeze gone.

"We debated as to whether or not we had better go, but finally decided, as the church was near, to go. We had been in church only a short time when the lights had to be turned on, and outside was dark as night nearly, and the wind began to blow though not so very hard, accompanied with just a little rain. Everyone in church began to get nervous, so I said to my friend that if she felt as though we had better leave and go home I was ready to go too. She said she thought it best to go. We had just gotten home and removed our hats and stepped to a window, facing the west, to look at the sky, where, in about two minutes, we saw the funnel shaped cloud come twisting and turning, seemingly headed towards us. Immediately I started out to call mother, who had gone to the kitchen, and as I looked back towards the window saw the cloud turn in a northeasterly direction.

"We came very near to being in the path of the cyclone—just five blocks removed. We, at the time the cyclone was doing its worst, did not even have any wind scarcely, but within a few moments after the cyclone had passed by, we were deluged with a very heavy rain which was certainly a blessing, as it helped put out fires which started immediately after the storm, and with which the different fire companies were unable to cope. The city called upon Council Bluffs, just across the Missouri river from us, for their firemen, not knowing that their own city was in need of all their own, as they too were visited by this same cyclone or another entirely different, as many now think, which though it did not cover as great an area, was equally as destructive.

"For a time after the storm it seemed as though the city was doomed to destruction by fire; every way we looked we could see flames shooting up, firemen running in all directions and unable, on account of the uprooted trees, debris, telephone wires, poles, etc., to get anywhere near to the fires. After this came ambulances, undertaker wagons, even hearses were used as ambulance wagons, and every one who had autos who had learned of the severity of the storm, hastened out to these districts to help bring in the wounded to hospitals and to remove those who had escaped injury to homes among friends and different places of shelter all over the city. This kept up incessantly all night long, and the next day, and for many days after; the dead were found and buried, in many cases as soon as possible, after identified by friends or relatives. I saw three bodies brought in just wrapped in sheets and laid side by side to be taken to the morgue. Then the long funeral procession—often in one procession two hearses, one following the other and in one hearse there were three bodies. The streets everywhere for a time were like this. Then came the soldiers to patrol the different districts and to establish relief stations.

"I started out at 7:00 or 7:30 a. m. the morning after the storm to find a family, friends of ours, father, mother and two children, who lived in the storm stricken districts and though we tried faithfully to find them, did not find them until four days after the storm. Her uncle is a letter carrier here and by making inquiries through him we found they had escaped injury although their house was removed from the foundation, furnace tipped over, windows blown out, chimneys blown down, etc. We did not know, at the time, that she had an uncle here and learned of him through another friend of theirs.

"Many of the injured are dying now and the papers do not print the worst things that have been found for they say it is too terrible to read.

"Mother and I have been over nearly the whole district now. There is so much walking to be done, if one wants to view the worst wreckage. Last Sunday we visited the southwest portion and today Bemis Park and Lake District where the most lives were lost. Twenty-five bodies were found in Idlewild Hall, a gambling place. Not far removed from that was a bakery where eight lives were lost.

"It makes one really sick to see this awful devastation of property and homes."

The Workers.

The prosperity of the world depends upon the men who walk in the fresh furrows and through the rustling corn, upon those whose faces are radiant with the glare of furnaces, upon the delvers in dark mines, the workers in shops, upon those who give to the wintry air the music of the ax and upon those who wrestle with the wild waves of the raging sea.—Ingersoll.

GETTING GRAY? USE SAGE TEA TO RESTORE NATURAL COLOR OF HAIR

Says Sage and Sulphur Darkens Hair Beautifully and Ends Dandruff.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair, says a well-known local pharmacist. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and even today this simple preparation has no equal. Millions of women and men too, who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Nowadays we are not bothered with the task of gathering the sage leaves and the mussy mixing at home. Simply ask at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of the ready to use preparation, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Customers like this best because it darkens so naturally; so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it contains ingredients which take off dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. No, it isn't a dye or even like it. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

NEW COUNCIL TO ORGANIZE TUESDAY

Odds and Ends of Two Years' Work to Be Cleaned Up at Meeting Tonight

The common council will meet in regular session tonight for the last time, except one, under the present administration. The meeting tonight will be devoted to cleaning up the odds and ends of two years work and it is not likely that a new resolution, ordinance or motion will be introduced. All matters requiring the action of committees, it is likely, will be held over for the new organization which will come into existence next Tuesday at noon.

The old council will convene in regular session shortly before noon Tuesday, sing its swan song, and cease to exist. The new council will come into being immediately after twelve o'clock under the administration of the incoming Mayor Ori Sorensen. The mayor, city officials and aldermen will take their oath of office and the session will then adjourn until two o'clock at which time Mayor Ori Sorensen will announce his committee appointments and the council will elect a city attorney and several other city officials.

The council will then adjourn to take up its regular work the second Friday evening of each month and such other times as occasion demands.

SUPERIOR TEAM TO PLAY THE ATHLETES

With the weather man's consent, the Superior baseball team will play the Athletics tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the league grounds. The same teams will play Sunday at 2:30.

The bad weather of the past few days has not stopped Curtis and his tossers from their daily workout. Each morning they have gone on a hike. These hikes have been in different directions in the city, from Grandd bluff to Onalaska. The games which were to be played every afternoon with the normal boys have not come off, the youngsters not showing up. Their manager stated to Curtis that he would not allow his men to play in the inclement weather.

OIL RATES SUSPENDED

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Advanced rates on petroleum and its products in car loads from Emulsion, Pa., and a number of other points located on the Pennsylvania north of Pittsburgh and south of Franklin, Pa., to Detroit, Mich., Milwaukee, Wis., and other points of destination were today ordered suspended by the interstate commerce commission until August 9. Complaint was made to the commission that the proposed rates would discriminate in favor of Franklin and Oil City, from which no increase in rates were proposed and from which this traffic would be handled at lower rates.

TO PROBE WAGES

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—A state investigation of the subject of minimum wage for women employed in mercantile establishments became assured today by the passage of the Friebohn senate bill in the house. It now goes to Gov. Cox.

POPE'S HEALTH IS MUCH IMPROVED

His Holiness Able to Sit Up Today and the Doctors Prophecy Complete Recovery

ROME, April 11.—The marked improvement in the condition of Pope Pius X continued today, and the papal physicians were confident that convalescence would be rapid unless there are complications.

His Holiness was promised that he might, perhaps, sit up for a brief interval during the day. Early today he had no fever, and his pulse was normal. The heart still showed weakness, though, and the kidney affection remained.

Prof. Ettore Marchiafava and Dr. Andrea Amici, the pope's physicians, today said that two months of complete rest would restore the pontiff to normal health, barring complications.

The doctors fulfilled their promise by allowing the pope to sit up a few minutes today while his bedroom was being put in order. In spite of the pope's apparent improvement, Drs. Marchiafava and Amici ascertained late this afternoon they had not succeeded in checking the progress of his trouble, closely akin to Bright's disease. When the pope's sisters visited the vatican they told him that their janitor's daughter, upon whom Dr. Amici operated yesterday, was in a serious condition, probably dying. Pope Pius at once commanded Dr. Amici to leave him and visit the sick girl. The physician obeyed.

OLSON'S VICTIM NOT LOCAL MAN

The similarity of the names of W. A. Darling, formerly of La Crosse, and Clyde Darling, laundry-wagon driver of Minneapolis, both of whom were shot and killed in Minneapolis a short time ago, has caused many La Crosse people to confuse the two. The aged La Crosse veteran was killed with no apparent reason by a maniac more than a week after Clyde Darling was slain by Prof. Oscar Olson because of his relations with the latter's wife. The trial of Prof. Olson for the killing of Darling has occasioned a great deal of interest in La Crosse, aided by the fact that many believed him to be on trial for the slaying of a former La Crosse man.

That far-away look in the eyes may be caused by indignation as well as by love or higher thought.

If a woman isn't suspicious of her husband it's because she has something else to worry her.

GIRLS SUES FATHER FOR BOYCOTTING

CHICAGO, April 11.—Miss Mildred Considine, who brought suit against her father, John W. Considine, vaudeville magnate, for $100,000, alleging he caused a boycott to be raised against her that prevented her from obtaining any theatrical engagements, declared today that the alleged boycott was "spite work."

"My father fought the divorce granted my mother," said she, "and then, though he is a millionaire, he gave me but one thousand dollars in fifteen years with which to support myself."

"I had to earn my living, but when I went to booking agencies and asked them to stage my little playlet, I found he had forced a black list against me."

Considine is the largest owner of a circuit of low priced vaudeville houses extending all over the country.

REPUBLICANS TO DISCUSS TARIFF

"Conference" to Be Held to Which Insurgents Are Invited at Which Minority Will Organize

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Advised as distinctly a "conference" not a caucus on the tariff, the house republicans will meet tonight to outline their tariff battle against the democrats.

Today the republicans of the ways and means committee held a preliminary meeting. It was decided to write a minority report of the tariff revision but not to bring in any substitute minority bill.

The progressive touch of "conference" was injected into the call for the republicans tariff confab tonight as an invitation to former "insurgents" who announced their willingness to attend a "conference" as distinguished from a caucus.

Privately, the republican leaders stated today they expected few of the "insurgents" and none of the out-and-out progressives to attend their meeting. Representative Sereio E. Payne is preparing a draft of the minority report.

WOMEN KEEP UP ARSON CAMPAIGN

Cricket Pavilion Burned in Protest Against Imprisonment of Mrs. Pankhurst

LONDON, April 11.—Suffragettes early today burned the pavilion at the Turnbridge Wells cricket field. A large photograph of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant leader now in Holloway jail, was left at the scene of the fire by one of the "arsonettes."

In the home office, Secretary Reginald McKenna admitted publicly that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is very weak from hunger striking. He asserted that her condition, however, could not be in any way considered critical and, therefore, there was little prospect of her release today.

This is Mrs. Pankhurst's eighth day without food.

POP ANSON APPROVES

VETERAN BASEBALLER SENDS UNIQUE ENDORSEMENT OF WILSON'S BASEBALL LEANINGS TO EXECUTIVE

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Wilson received an unique endorsement today. It took the form of the following telegram from Adrian C. Anson (Pop):

Having been city clerk of Chicago on the democratic ticket and also slightly connected with baseball, it pleases me greatly to note that you have gone to the front for the great national game of baseball. I am convinced now that I made no mistake in voting for you in the primaries.

The reference to the "primaries" caused Secretary Tumulty and his assistants to wonder who "Pop" voted for in the general election.

CLERKS FEAR AN HOUR EXTENSION

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Thirty thousand employees in government departments here were thrown into a near-panic today by reports that President Wilson and his cabinet are seriously considering changing the working hours to begin at 8 a. m. instead of 9 o'clock. The proposition is scheduled for consideration in today's cabinet meeting.

SEARCH FOR LOST GIRLS KEEPS UP

Federal Immigration Inspector Goes to Newcastle to Investigate Disappearance

B. & O. SCOUTS THE STORY

Railroad Declares There Is No Truth in Tale of Immigrants' Kidnapping

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 11.—W. W. Sibray, inspector of immigration here, who with United States Attorney John H. Jordan, stated that he had no official knowledge or complaint made to government officials in Chicago of the disappearance of twenty immigrant girls from a Baltimore & Ohio railroad train in Newcastle, Pa., on March 17, was expected to arrive in Newcastle today from Erie, Pa., and assist in the search for information.

Road Discredits Story
BALTIMORE, Md., April 11.—In regard to the report of the twenty immigrant girls supposed to have disappeared while enroute from New York to Chicago, the Baltimore & Ohio today issued the following statement:

"There is absolutely no foundation for the story. The Baltimore & Ohio handled two cars of immigrants from New York to Chicago March 17 and 18, all reaching their destination. A car containing forty men immigrants but no women reached Newcastle Junction, Pa., Wednesday, March 26, enroute to Chicago and was delayed by flood conditions. The men were provided for and meals furnished at the expense of the railroad until they could be taken forward. While in the junction 19 of the men went to with gangs repairing flood damage and are still employed."

MUCH OPPOSITION TO MEDICAL BILL

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—Strong opposition on the part of druggists, practitioners, healers, Christian Scientists and even members of the medical profession developed at the hearing on the bill introduced by Assemblyman O'Connor and drafted by A. C. Umbreit, attorney for the state board of medical examiners which would create a board of examiners to pass upon the eligibility of any one who wished to practice any form of healing.

Umbreit declared in explaining the measure that he was the author and that no member of the medical profession had asked for it but that he had drawn and had it introduced on his own initiative.

MRS. L. SCHWIER DIES IN BOSTWICK VALLEY

Mrs. Louis Schwier, age 23, died Wednesday at her home in Bostwick Valley, two weeks after the birth of a child. She is survived by her husband and one child, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Garbers, Bostwick Valley. Four brothers survive, John Garbers, Louis Garbers, Fritz Garbers and George Garbers, and one sister, Mrs. Frederick Meyer. Three half brothers and two half sisters also survive, Elmer, Louis and William Schwier, and Edna and Edella Stoeteklud.

The funeral services were held yesterday from the German Lutheran church in Barre Mills.

SERVIANS DESERT SCUTARI SIEGE

VIENNA, April 11.—Dispatches here today indicated a split in the Serbo-Montenegrin coalition attacking Scutari. From Belgrade came word that the Servians have abandoned the siege of Scutari and are marching homeward. A report from Cetinje asserted that the carelessness of the Servians was responsible for the recent heavy Montenegrin losses before Scutari. The Montenegrins declared that the Servian artillerymen forgot to stop firing while the Montenegrins were making a hand to hand attack on the outer fortifications.

Parker Pens

The Parker pen flows without a hitch or a skip. Moreover, it is the only pen that has succeeded in abolishing leakage and therefore has succeeded in abolishing ink smeared fingers.

The ladies can carry our small jackknife pen in their purses with no fear of soiling the contents, which is very convenient, as hitherto it was impossible to carry a pen unless it was always held in an upright position.

Come in and let us explain to you more fully the advantages of the Parker pen. We carry the jackknife safety and the self filler, made plain or with gold or silver mountings.

Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the new assistant secretary of the navy, has started out on a political career very much like that of his illustrious cousin Theodore. Young Franklin has the same position at Washington that the elder Roosevelt held under McKinley. Both Roosevelts are graduates of Harvard and both have been state senators in New York. They are related both by blood and marriage. The new assistant secretary is thirty-one years old and is a Democrat.

WILSON STICKS TO FREE SUGAR PLEDGE

Governor Refuses to Move From Determination to Remove Duty in Three Years

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Wilson refused today to consider modification of the sugar schedule of the Wilson-Underwood tariff bill. Colonel Robert M. Ewing of New Orleans, democratic national committeeman from Louisiana, made a final appeal on behalf of southern cane growers to have the three year provision, which provides that after that time sugar shall go on the free list, eliminated.

The president listened attentively to the argument but declined to recede from his position that the party is pledged to give the people free sugar.

After Colonel Ewing left, former Governor Adams of Colorado, made a similar plea on behalf of the beet sugar growers of his state. The president suggested to his visitor that during the three year period he was satisfied manufacturers could adjust their business so that they could compete with the foreign sugar when it came into active competition with the native article.

MORGAN'S BODY ARRIVES TODAY

Coffin of Great Financier to Be Landed at New York This Afternoon

NEW YORK, April 11.—The body of J. P. Morgan was due to arrive in New York late this afternoon on the French liner La France. The steamer was slightly delayed by thick weather. The body was to be removed at once to the library of the Morgan residence on Madison avenue, where it will remain until the funeral services Monday morning in St. George's Protestant Episcopal church of which the late financier was senior warden. J. P. Morgan, Jr., and his son Junius went down the bay to board the steamer in Quarantine, S. I. The government officials made arrangements to expedite the landing of the casket and to prevent crowds from assembling on the wharf. Only special pier passes were to be recognized and all photographs were to be barred.

NEW ALBIN GIRL WEDS LOCAL MAN

Miss Evelyn LaBresh, New Albin, Iowa, and Julius Schnick, La Crosse, were married at 7:30 last night at the residence of Rev. Julius Gamm, pastor of the German Lutheran church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Schnick attended the concert in the German Lutheran church parlors. Mr. and Mrs. Schnick will be at home at 1115 Farnam street.

DEMOCRATS TAKE UP METAL DUTIES

Schedule C the Battle-ground in the Majority Caucus Today

NO CHANGES MADE IN THE BILL

All Efforts to Raise Tariffs Fixed by Underwood Bill Are Failures

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The house democrats settled down for a stiff fight today when in caucus they tackled "Schedule C"—metals—one of the schedules in the Wilson-Underwood tariff measures which has suffered the heaviest cuts.

Encouraged by the success in preventing any revision of the bill in caucus to date, low duty champions prepared to resist the attempts that will be made to force increased rates of many higher grade metals products.

Chemicals, oils, paints, earthenware and glassware—all cut unmercifully in the new bill—will go before the house with the duties as fixed by the way and means committee despite the bitter fight made on the pottery paragraph by Representative Whitacre of Ohio, who declared that the duties as fixed by the committee on pottery and china were spelled ruin for the potteries of East Liverpool, representing an investment of $50,000,000.

The metal schedule which the house took up today includes all metal ware from sword blades to locomotives and from crude pig iron to pocket knives.

"PRACTICAL LINES" AIM OF SCHOOLS

morning, country "school marm," to city superintendents. Some time was spent in getting the association badge pinned on every pedagogue after which the regular session began. The children of the first and second grades of the normal model school sang two songs without a trace of nervousness and evoked much applause from the audience.

Methods of Supervision

The address given by Principal H. L. Miller of the University High school at Madison on the "Productive Methods of Supervision by Superintendent and Principal," was one of the best talks on an educational subject ever heard in this city. He dealt with his topic in a clear and concise manner, one that could be easily understood without too much thought.

He dealt with his subject from the standpoint of the proper attitude the principal or superintendent should assume toward the teacher in the classroom.

"The superintendent is too mechanical in his work," he said, "for he sees that the building is in proper shape, the rooms are properly ventilated and heated and that the janitor work in the school is well done. He gives too much time to these things and does not take enough interest in the work the teacher is doing for her pupils. The teacher has three well defined duties in the school room those pertaining to the janitor work of the room, regulative measures and that of teaching. The superintendent should visit the teacher with a view to helping her to solve those problems and should co-operate with her and help her to solve the new theories that he has devised for the teaching of the pupils."

Allow Pupil to Think

"The teachers of today are inclined to be too apt to help the student in his recitation by prompting him with questions some teachers asking as high as fifty in a recitation. The teacher should allow the student to think. Then too some teachers demand that the pupil recite what he has gleaned from the printed page and not what he has actually gotten from the idea the printed page is supposed to impart to him. The problem of assigning advanced work is done very often in a slipshod manner. The superintendent ought to give some of his time toward helping the teacher to properly regulate all these things and not be a mechanical superintendent only."

Vincent to Speak

This evening President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota will give a lecture in the high school auditorium to the W. W. T. A. on "The New Duty of the School." The public is invited to attend this lecture; an admission of twenty-five cents will be charged. This lecture will be the feature of the convention as Dr. Vincent is a speaker of great ability and always has a lasting message to impart.

DEPORT STRIKE BREAKERS

BOSTON, April 11.—It was considered certain that the 2,200 telephone operators would ratify the agreement with the New England Telephone company accompanied by their committee. The exodus of girl strike breakers de luxe imported and quartered in the most fashionable hotels by the company will be in full swing today and by tonight only 200 of over 2,000 girls will be left.

KING'S YACHT NABBED

ANTIVARI, April 11.—The Roumia, King Nicholas' own private yacht, was the first vessel to be nabbed in the net of the international blockade. The yacht, conveying three barges loaded with flour, was caught early today entering the mouth of the Bovan river. The flour was confiscated.

MAJESTIC SHOW IS BIG SUCCESS

Terese Miller Delights in Stellar Role of "The Girl From Dublin"

The attraction at the Majestic theater is Norman Friedenwald's hilarious, rip-roaring musical farce, "The Girl From Dublin," in which Terese Miller is featured—a show that has been breaking laughing records with a regularity that makes it eagerly sought by theater managers. The company includes a number of well-known performers. Terese Miller, a happy girl, who spreads sunshine wherever she goes, has a leading role and presents the specialty that won her such prominence in vaudeville. Charles Brownie and W. J. McCaffrey have leading comic roles and entertain with a vigor and vim that "beats all." The Four Manning Sisters sing popular successes, interpolating a specialty into the performance, which stands in a meritorious position in vaudeville circles. Shannon & Strawn bring still another vaudeville interruption.

A visit to "The Girl from Dublin" means an hour and a half of the jolliest fun imaginable. There is something doing every minute—a chorus of pretty girls no more than conclude a number when a group of comedians busy themselves in some ludicrous effort or other.

The comedy in "The Girl From Dublin" is natural and consistent. There are no far-fetched "gags." The fun is provided by "Mike Delaney" (W. J. McCaffrey) and "Mike Clancy" (Charles Brownie) who have the assistance of a half a dozen comedians of lesser fame. The jests are original and represent the very best grade of humor. The comedy scenes are so well staged that a sphinx would be forced to laugh.

STEAL $60,000 IN AMERICAN SILVER

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, April 11.—Word reached here today that Gen. Francisco (Pancho) Villa, former bandit, now in the field at the head of 700 constitutionalists, held up a Mexico Northwestern railroad train near here and took more than $60,000 worth of silver bullion after a fierce fight in which eight persons were slain. The stolen bullion was the property of the Dolores Mining company, controlled by Americans.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston 8; New York 0
NEW YORK, April 11.—Boston defeated New York in the first game of the season here Thursday before a big crowd by a score of 8 to 0. The usual opening day ceremonies were omitted with the exception that Mayor Gaynor threw out the first ball.
Sunless skies and a cold wind made conditions unpleasant alike for players and spectators.

Perdue held the home club at his mercy, and the champions made only two singles. Not one of McGraw's men got further than second base.
Boston started to hit Tesreau in the fourth, and from that inning on they rapped the ball hard. Crandall was slaughtered in the ninth inning. Maranville, the recruit shortstop of the visitors, was the star of the game, both in the field and at bat. R H E

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 11.—
Hard hitting by Brooklyn and, in particular, timely singles by Daubert and a home run by Fisher, in the early innings and a three bagger by Cut-shaw in the eighth, with the bases filled gave the visitors the victory in the opening championship game here on Thursday, 11 to 3. Ragon was effective, except in the eighth inning, when Miller and Cravath, pinch hitters, batted safely and scored on sacrifice flies. The cold, cloudy weather kept the attendance down.

After Murphy secured Mitchell from the Reds he determined on the release of Sheckard, who came to the Cubs from Brooklyn in 1906. Negotiations have been pending with St.
Louis for several weeks.

ASSOCIATION HAS NASTY WEATHER

CHICAGO, April 11.—The weatherman still had the "Indian sign" on the American association today. Yesterday Kansas City alone staged a game, the Blues beating the Louisville Colonels, 11 to 7. Early today the game between the Millers and the Iowans in Minneapolis was called off on account of snow, and the contest in St. Paul between Columbus and the Saints was also postponed, owing to a mixture of rain and snow.

In Milwaukee, where the Mud
Hens were to mix with the Brewers, it was threatening rain and the weather was cold, making postponement probable. Kansas City may be able to stage the game, but early prospects were for rain.

SUPERIOR PLAYS ATHLETES TWICE

Curtis' Superior band of ball toss-ers will be treated to a little real practice tomorrow and Sunday—if the weather man is willing. They will stack up against the La Crosse Athletes, one of the fastest semi-pro clubs in the new City league. Games are scheduled for tomorrow and Sunday, with every prospect of good ball if conditions are right. Hackner and Walters will be on the firing line for the Athletes in the first game tomorrow, and Fuchsel and Anderson will lead the attack Sunday.

DILLON BEATS CROUSE

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 11.—Jack
Dillon was still in the waiting line for middleweight championship today, following his bout with Buck Crouse here last night. Crouse started with a rush, but the Indianapolis boy had things his way after the bout got fairly started. Dillon landed two blows to Buck's one and was there with the punches that would have won for him had the north sider been a little less wary.

DOERFLINGER'S

The Gold Dust Twins' Philosophy

THE floors and doors appear to wait until the dust germs congregate; the housewife hails each dawning day with grim and harrowing dismay. Says she: "My work will NEVER end; 'er dusty stretches I must bend, until, with aching back and hands I finish what the day demands."

The "Floor-and-Door-a" Girl

Then Mrs. Jones, one afternoon, dropped in, at time most opportune. An optimist, she knew the wiles of household work—it sighs and smiles. She told of how she polished floors and woodwork and the endless doors, until when Hubby saw them, too, reflections said: "Why, howdy-do!"

"The Gold Dust Twins," said she, "I find, help leave the woes of dust behind. Each mark of sticky hands on doors, each tread of muddy feet on floors, all fade before the slightest touch of Gold Dust, and the work is such that, when the woodwork has been done, I find said work was only fun." This line of reasoning must show that those who've tried it OUGHT to know. If you, in one day's duties, find that there's a Grouch in ev'ry Grind, invite the Gold Dust Twins to share such tasks as tire and fret and wear.

From kitchen floor to bedroom suite, these tireless little chaps make neat, and best of all, the sum expense is measured up in meager cents. They put both dust and dirt to rout and run the last old microbe out.

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS GET "ACID TEST"

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The customs service is about to undergo Adoo's "acid test." Four customs officials in Philadelphia were first to fall on the test and enforced regulations followed. Today it was intimated that customs officers in a number of other cities would be similarly rehabilitated. The process, as explained at the treasury department, is a gradual, general transfusion of new blood in the service, replacing republicans out of sympathy with the present administration's plans for customs reform with younger men, more in touch with the democratic program.

One Drawback.

Farmer Burr—How do you like your automobile. Ezra? Farmer Root—Waal, I can't go to sleep on my way home from town and wake up in the barnyard like I could with old Dobbin—Puck.

SMUT CAUSE OF BIG CROP LOSSES

Prof. Balmer, of Agricultural College, Warns the Farmers to Cleanse Seed Grain

TWO KINDS OF DISEASE FOUND

Formalin and Hot Water Treatments Recommended; Wind Carries the Spores

(By Prof. F. E. Balmer, of the La Crosse County Agricultural College.)

In many sections of La Crosse county there are losses varying from 5 to 25 per cent of the grain crops due to the prevalence of smut. Some smut may be found in practically every grain field except where the seed has been treated.

The seed treatment for smut prevention is so simple, so effective, and costs so little that no farmer should neglect it, whenever it may occur in any small grain crop.

There are several smuts affecting the various grain crops, but since barley and oats are the most generally grown in this section this discussion will be limited to their description and control.

There is only one common smut on oats. It occurs almost as soon as the oats begin to head. Usually a smutted plant produces nothing but a smutted head and practically every grain in the plant is effected. The smut balls break soon after appearing, and the smut powder, (a mass of spores) is blown away by the wind, so that at harvest time less smut is seen than has been present. The smut powder is blown onto healthy heads and lodges on the grain or gets within the chaff. In this way it is carried by the seed so that in planting the seed the spores are present, and germinate with the seed sending a parasite growth up the plant which breaks out in the head as before.

Different Treatment Required
There are two smuts prevalent in barley—the covered and the loose. It is very important that the farmer should be able to distinguish these as a different treatment is required for the control of each.

The covered smut is a late smut and is often found in the threshed grain in the form of black, irregular and hard masses of smut. Most of the chaff is smutted, as well as the kernel; and each smut-ball is covered by a silvery skin which often breaks soon after the smut heads appear. In this way the mass of smut spores is exposed to the wind and blown upon the healthy heads, lodging on the grain in the field. When barley with covered smut on it is planted the smut grows when the seed germinates and infects the plant much as the oat plant is affected by the oat smut.

Smut Comes Early

The life history and the appearance of the loose smut vary considerably from the covered smut. The loose smut comes out early, beginning to show as soon as the heads appear and shows a maximum growth about July 4, while the covered smut begins to come out about two weeks later. In the loose smut the awns or beards are often converted into smut while they are not usually smutted in the covered. In the loose, the smut masses break soon after coming out, and the smut is blown out by the wind, leaving only the bare stalks whereas in the covered, the smut masses may break and some may be blown out, yet many of the smut balls remain on the stalk until harvest. In the loose smut the smut-mass has a dark olive green color. The thin skin around it breaks very early. The smut mass in the covered smut is coal black in color and has a silvery grey skin around it.

Formalin Treatment

The most important difference to remember concerning these two barley smuts is that the loose smut cannot be prevented by the formalin treatment while the covered smut can be.

The formalin treatment will also prevent the smut of oats. In making this treatment the seed grain is spread out in a clean wagon box or on a clean floor making a layer several inches deep. This is sprinkled with a solution of 1 pint (about one pound) of forty per cent formalin thoroughly mixed with forty gallons of water. This amount is sufficient to treat about 40 or 50 bushels of oats or barley. The grain is then shoveled over repeatedly to distribute the moisture evenly. Then the grain should be shoveled into as compact a pile as possible and covered with sacks or a canvas for at least two hours. It may be left as long as over night if the treatment is made late in the day. This covering of the grain is the essential part of the treatment as it is the gas from the formalin rather than the solution of it that destroys the smut. Following the treatment the seed may be sown at once or it may stand until the next day. If it is kept longer it should be spread out in a thin layer and stirred occasionally so as to rapidly dry. Many prefer to dry the seed before sowing as then it is not necessary to open the drill wider in order to seed the required amount of grain per acre.

Seed Sacks Should be Treated

It is important to treat sacks which have contained smutty grain and floors upon which treatment is made so that the seed will not become reinfected with smut after treatment. A stronger solution should be made for this purpose using one pint of formalin to about ten gallons of water. The grain drill should be treated with a similar solution.

Hot Water Treatment

The loose smut of barley requires the hot water treatment. The seed should first be soaked 5 to 7 hours in cold water. (The barley may be kept in cold water as long as 12 hours.) From the cold water the grain should be transferred (about ½ bushel at a time) in sacks to a barrel of water the temperature of which is kept not less than 125 degrees Fahrenheit and not higher than 130 degrees Fahrenheit. The grain is kept in this for about one minute dipping the sack in and out in order to bring the seed up to about the right temperature. The grain is then placed into a barrel containing water which is kept at a temperature between 120 degrees and 135 degrees F., the treating temperature, where it is left from 10 to 15 minutes. The grain may be raised and lowered so that the water will get in contact with all seed. Following the treatment the grains should be carefully dried as above described for the formalin treatment. A supply of cold water and hot water should be kept on hand constantly during the treatment. Hot water should not be added to the barrels when the grain is in them but before introducing it.

RUSHFORD MINN

The hearts of all Rushfordites were filled with deepest sorrow Monday, when the sad news was received from Harmony that Mrs. Louis Peterson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson of this city, had passed to the Great Beyond, after almost two weeks of intense suffering. Two tiny twin babies, a son and daughter are left to the stricken husband's care, besides her parents, and numerous nieces and nephews. Mrs. Peterson was a Rushfordite by birth and had, previous to her marriage nearly three years ago, been a trusted employee of the postoffice here. The remains were brought to this city last night and funeral services will be held today from the Lutheran church, Rev. Jaarstad officiating.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oistad, who reside several miles south of here, passed away Monday, the young lady having been in poor health for several months. Funeral services were conducted yesterday from the Lutheran church.

Reports from Ralph, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Baerman, who is recovering from a recent operation for appendicitis, state that he is yet in bed but feeling fine and expects to be home before very long.

Alfred Isberg, who has been in South Dakota, upon a homestead, is again home.

Mesdames Herman Olson and Chas. Johnson entertain the guild of Emmanuel church this afternoon at the Parish house.

Mrs. M. B. Gullickson of Peterson and Miss Alice Gunderson who teaches at Harmony, have been guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gunderson of Mill street.

Carl Hellerud accompanied his son, Henry, up to Jackson on Monday, where the latter is to open a jeweler's shop. If business conditions are agreeable, Mr. Hellerud's family will move there sometime this summer.

Miss Carrie Alm of this city has, together with Mrs. Archie Monroe of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Martin Anderson of Winona, been the guest of her cousin and his family, Rudolph Berg of La Crosse. The three ladies were the guests of honor at a very pretty "coffee" given by Mrs. Berg yesterday.

Clarence Hilden, who is a student at a watchmaking school at Peoria, Ill., has been spending the past two weeks with his mother at Grover.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Likavitz of Winona, have had a great bereavement in the death of their little three year old daughter, who had been ill but a few days with appendicitis. The little one, who was a bright and lovable child was a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Likavitz, residing north of Rushford.

A real estate deal was perfected this week, which made Mr. E. G. Kingsford owner of the former Henry Hendrickson property, in North Rushford, and now occupied by Carl Smaby and family.

Mr. Ed Lampman who has fully recovered from a recent operation for appendicitis, performed at La Crosse has, with Mrs. Lampman, gone out to Chinook, Mont., where they own a ranch.

The Misses Gusta Laumb and Judith Bratland have been guests of Houston friends.

Clarence Thompson, A. Halverson and Ella Gorden were up from Yucatan Monday.

A carload of Italian laborers passed through this city yesterday, going up the line to Peterson where they will do construction work.

Miss Jennie McLaughlin, one of our city's milliners, received the sad news this week of her father's death at Chaffield. She left for her home immediately, returning today.

Ed Vigard, who recently bought the residence property formerly owned and occupied by John Akre, is preparing to move into his new home. Mr. Akre is busy at work excavating for a new residence to be erected upon the lots he recently purchased from Rev. Wright in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Strupp of Yucatan, were callers in Rushford this week.

Our city went "dry" again this spring by a majority of 45, and there is great rejoicing in the prohibition ranks.

A Monster Rowboat.

The first big vessel that history records, but not of steam, was that of Ptolemy Philopater, an Egyptian, who is said to have constructed a barge 420 feet long, 57 feet broad and 72 feet deep from the highest point of the stern, which in olden days, even past the time of Columbus, was always the highest point of a ship. This vessel, according to historical records, was propelled by 4,000 rowers, who sat in five banks, using oars fifty-seven feet in length that were weighted with lead at the handles. New York Press.

BAND OF FRESHIES
HAZED AT MADISON

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—The first step in the threatened return to hazing at the University of Wisconsin was taken Tuesday night when two freshmen were unceremoniously tossed into Lake Mendota by sophomores, juniors and seniors attired in pajamas, Navajo blankets and sweaters.

The call to arms was issued about 11 o'clock by a small party of sophomores who encountered the yearlings in the act of painting the cement sidewalks in the vicinity of the gymnasium with green paint. In a short time a large crowd had gathered from the fraternity and boarding houses in the vicinity of Lake street and Mendota court, and the freshmen were forced into the lake. After being given a chance to jump in the icy water of their own accord the rebellious ones were given material aid from behind by the band of upper classmen.

Several members of the class of 1916 have been reported for violation of the green cap tradition and it is expected that lake parties will continue in popularity until several of the chief offenders have been made to assume the role of horrible examples.

BILL TO INSURE
PUBLIC SERVICEHolmes Bill Gives Rate
Board Power to Force
Joint Use of Trackage

(From Tribune Madison Bureau)

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—(Special.)—The highest efficiency in public service by railroads and other common carriers is made more certain, it is claimed, by passage of the bill, introduced by Assemblyman Fred L. Holmes, giving to the Wisconsin rate commission the authority to order the joint use of tracks by street car, interurban and steam companies.

The new law is but another step in the progressive program, inaugurated years ago by Senator La Follette, to make public utilities serve the public in the best possible manner.

Has Broad Scope

The new law is of much broader scope than appears on its face. With traction experts already predicting that this state will soon be a network of interurban lines—the same as is now the case in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois—the placing of authority insuring the highest degree of good service is by no means an unimportant matter.

A condition that might arise in this state is a good illustration of how the creation of this new authority for the commission will work for the public good.

The Soo, or old Wisconsin Central road, at present enters Milwaukee over the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, using the latter company's terminal and switching tracks under a lease. Conditions are such that obstacles might be encountered if the Soo sought to install a terminal of its own there. In the event difficulties arose between the two companies that resulted in the refusal of the C. M. & St. P. to renew the lease, the service of the Soo would be badly crippled and inefficient to the many people along its route. If such a condition should arise by virtue of the new law, the rate commission could compel the joint use of tracks if necessity demanded.

Same With Interurbans

The same conditions apply to interurbans and city roads. In most cities the car companies are operating under long franchises which include the exclusive rights to tracks on the principal streets. An interurban wishing to enter a city might have trouble in making a deal with the local utility for use of necessary tracks to reach a desirable terminal. Again, if public service demands, the rate commission may order joint use of tracks.

A measure against which there is some opposition is that of Assemblyman Vint. His bill proposes to take from the rate commission the authority to regulate street railways and to give that power to the municipality. It has been pointed out that the power to regulate companies operating under city franchises has never been taken from the cities—although it has seldom, if ever, been exercised. Under the existing law cities may regulate the utilities and compel compliance with any order issued by the council. Appeal, however, may be taken to the rate commission.

Many Object

When the bill was up for hearing recently, many appeared against the measure, among them being "Con" Corcoran, president of the Milwaukee common council. He cites numerous cases that have arisen in Milwaukee to prove that regulation of a big utility by a council is almost an impossible task. Local politics, he says, so frequently entered the question that the real issue of good public service was often obscured. It was also pointed out during the argument that in Milwaukee, where complaints against the traction company are continuous and numerous, the council has never taken a step MORTON'S GAP, Ky.—"I was taken sick, and confined to my room and bed most of the time, for ten months," writes Mrs. Louise E. Hibbs, of this place.

"I had ulcers and then a tumor. The second doctor who treated me, said the last chance was an operation, to remove the tumor, and when the third doctor was called in, he told me it was serious and that it was doubtful if I would recover.

I couldn't consent to the operation, so I decided to try Cardui. When I had taken two bottles I felt better. In two months I could go about and do light housework. Now I feel well, and the tumor is gone.

I do heartily recommend Cardui to suffering women. I am sure it will cure."

COMMONS FOR BILL

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—Legislation sought by the McGovern market commission bill, introduced by Assemblyman Mahon, and the Hull direct marketing bill was championed before the assembly committee on state affairs Wednesday afternoon by Prof. John R. Commons of the state industrial commission. "There is need for this class of legislation," said Prof. Commons. "The only question, in my opinion, is whether the courts or a commission shall enforce it."

Daddy's Bedtime
Story—

Now, Where Did Jim Get the Whooping Cough?

EVELYN had Tabby on her lap, while Jack was amusing himself making Tabby play with a piece of twine. "Sneezing again, Master Jack," said daddy as Tabby jumped down and started for her cushion. "I wonder if Tabby is afraid of catching cold from you?"

"Cats don't catch illnesses from children," Evelyn said. "I'm not so sure of that," daddy went on. "There is Germaine's case. She is a little girl who has a cat named Jim. Germaine lives with her grandmother and with her Aunt Mamie.

"Every day Germaine goes to school. Last winter all the children in the school had the whooping cough. It is a very nasty kind of cough, and when Germaine caught it she had to stay home for a couple of weeks.

"She is a little girl who loves to play outdoors, and it was very hard for her to stay in the house. She played with her dolls and had tea parties until she was tired of lonely games.

"Jim, who is very fond of Germaine, followed her about, slept in her lap or cheerfully played guard at the tea parties, at which he was given milk out of one of the doll's teacups.

"If it hadn't been for Jim I'm afraid Germaine would have been a much lonelier little girl, for the grownups had no time to play with her. It kept them busy thinking up new kinds of medicine to give her or coaxing it down her unwilling throat. Germaine doesn't like to take medicine.

"At last she was well and started off to school with a very cheerful face. Germaine had never cared much about school, but now it seemed a fine place to go. She enjoyed herself very much that first day telling her little schoolmates how very ill she had been.

"All that day at home Jim slept very quietly under the kitchen stove. He did not seem to care for his milk or meat, but grandmother explained this by saying he missed Germaine.

"But when Germaine came home from school Jim still stayed under the stove and did not seem to notice her.

"And the next day Jim began to cough just like Germaine had done. "Why, I believe that cat has the whooping cough!" said grandmother.

"And he had. He coughed for several weeks, refusing the medicine offered him.

"And this year Jim has had the whooping cough again. In fact, he has had it two or three times.

"And Germaine's grandmother and her Aunt Mamie are quite sure that Jim caught this whooping cough from Germaine."

AIM BILL AT USE
OF STRIKEBREAKERSPlan to Prohibit Interstate Shipment of Workers to Fight Union
Labor

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Announcement that measures to protect wage earners against interstate shipment of strikebreakers and against the forcing of an employee to work as a strikebreaker, will be introduced and considered in the house during the present congress, was made by Representatives Frank Buchanan of Illinois, in a statement today written for the United Press. Buchanan is the ranking "union card member" of the democratic majority on the powerful committee of labor and is one of the two contestants for the chairmanship.

(By Frank Buchanan, Representative from Illinois.) The fact that telephone girls from Washington have been shipped to Boston to break a strike in the plant of the corporation owning the telephone in both cities, lends new emphasis to the need for legislation which will prevent any employer from forcing his employees to act as strikebreakers.

Before the close of the present congress such legislation will be introduced and considered in the house.

The interstate shipment of employees for strikebreaking purposes should be stopped. While I am not prepared to say it can be done under the constitutional rights of congress to regulate interstate commerce, we all know the clauses of the act have been strained to secure decisions hostile to labor.

Such corporations as this in Boston ought not to exist. The government should own and operate all public utilities and some day the United States people will wake up to that view. These private corporations always get labor as cheaply as possible and give the least service to the public for the greatest amount of money. I am hopeful that the time is here when their influence on legislation and the administration of the affairs of the country will be noticed for its absence. This is a people's administration. I am confident that it will respond to the needs of the wage earners who are the masses of the people and that with the settlement of these questions of the rights of employees the influences of public utility franchise corporations will have nothing to do.

MUCH DISCUSSION OF TRAIN LIMITING

MADISON, Wis., April 11.—The fifty car limit bill brought scores of railroad attorneys, representatives of railway lodges and shippers here to argue the merits of the measure. L. L. Rogers of Milwaukee, representing the railway trainmen, declared that 30 per cent of the railroad ties in the state are rotten and that long trains of over 100 cars should not be hauled. He declared that a train of 50 cars would be 2,000 feet in length and that with five men operating a train no longer one should be permitted without additional help. M. D. Munger, of the order of railway conductors; Assemblyman Philip Gannon of Superior; Henry Mahoney of Milwaukee, representing the railway brotherhood, and A. S. Merz of Madison, representing the firemen, spoke in favor of the measure. All claimed that a shorter train could be operated with greater safety and that freight shipments could be handled faster.

Should an original idea strike some men it would give them a headache.

Eats Freely But
Has No Dyspepsia

Takes a mild laxative with good pep-sin and insures comfort and pleasure.

Fortunate is the one who can eat "anything" without suffering the tortures of dyspepsia, but as few are so fortunate care should be taken in the matter of diet. Eating slowly, masticating the food thoroughly and taking a short walk after the heavy meal of the day will do much towards assisting digestion. Any grown-up person ought to know the peculiar foods that do not agree, and these should be avoided.

When these common-sense aids fail, the next thing to do is to take a mild digestive tonic with laxative properties, and there is none better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains the greatest of all aids to digestion, good pepsin. It has other ingredients that act mildly on the bowels, which together form a combination for the relief of dyspepsia or indigestion that is unsurpassed.

Its action is to tone and strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles so that they can again do their work naturally without outside aid, and when that happy moment comes all medicine can be dispensed with. It is the best remedy obtainable for any disorder of the stomach, liver and bowels, for dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, headaches, drowsiness after eating, gas on the stomach, etc. Thousands of users will testify to this, among them Mrs. Oliver Young, Merrill, Wis. She says: "After many years suffering from indigestion I have obtained what I believe to be permanent relief by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I feel 10 years younger, my work seems easy, my breath is no longer bad and I eat what I want without distress."

Syrup Pepsin is sure in its results, and a vast improvement over chewing or swallowing tablets and mints, or taking cathartics, salts, etc., all of which are harsh and nauseous and at best do but temporary good. You can obtain Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

AQUATIC EXPERT TO GIVE LESSONS

Noted Advocate of the Crawl Stroke to Instruct in Swimming at Y. M. C. A.

PUPIL LEARNS IN TWO LESSONS

Says Old Breast Stroke Is Responsible for Drownings; Few Can Save Life

Hebden H. Corsan, well known swimming instructor, will be at the La Crosse Y. M. C. A. from April 21 to 26 to give instructions to those in the city who wish to learn to swim. One does not have to be a member of the association to receive the benefit of these instructions. Free lessons will be given to members of the association and to boys and ladies. A small amount will be charged to men who are not members of the association.

Corsan guarantees to teach anyone to swim in two lessons, providing they will follow his instructions. In the four years that Corsan has been giving lessons, he has on record more students that have learned to swim through his suggestion, than any other instructor.

Corsan never resorts to the old time easy method of suspending his pupil in the water from a pole and rope, but he gets right in the water with his man, sometimes using a pair of water bags.

"Out of the 4,000 cases of drowning annually that occur in the United States, I attribute a large majority to the lack of proper knowledge in regard to the use of strokes," said Mr. Corsan. "The breast stroke that is usually taught novices is one that causes many fatalities." Mr. Corsan says that very few of the persons who know how to swim could save a life.

Mr. Corsan employs the crawl stroke in teaching.

GERMANS CELEBRATE AT NORWALK APRIL 12

NORWALK, Wis., April 11.—German night will be inaugurated in a most auspicious manner on Saturday, April 12, at Roof's hall, at 8:15 p. m. Prof. Dr. Leo Stern, superintendent of public schools, Milwaukee, will deliver a lecture on the "Aims and Achievements of the National German-American Alliance."

Judging from all indications the German lecture course will prove a success. The complete program reads as follows:

Words of Welcome—Otto Engel, Solo, "Sing mir dein Lied," (Edwin Greene)—A. L. Crump. Piano, "Polonaise Militaire" (Chopin)—R. A. Froemming. "Aims and Achievements of the National German-American Alliance"—Prof. Dr. Leo Stern, Milwaukee. Piano, (a) Eude, Op. 10, No. 11 (Chopin), (b) Gavotte (D'Albert)—R. A. Froemming. Solo, "Good Night Dear" (Will Anderson)—A. L. Crump. Closing remarks—Moritz Herling, Die Wacht am Rhein, America. Accompanist, Miss Elizabeth George.

Eugene McGary was again elected village president.

Omar Luedcke, aged 13, son of Mr. Fred Luedcke, local undertaker, was taken to a Sparta hospital, where it became necessary to amputate his leg which was crushed in an accident at the railroad yard on Monday. Death occurred after the operation. Interment will take place on Friday from the German Evangelical church.

Norwalk will soon boast of its own hospital.

Leander Perry, a well known pioneer of Monroe county, aged 87, died at Barnevill, Wis. He was buried at Norwalk, the Rev. C. Maves officiating.

Joe Leibel purchased a farm near Kendall.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

ASSISTANCE UNASKED

By ARTHUR W. PEACH

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate
Sheffield came in smiling. "Chap, I've got some good news for you—I would call it good news. Glosman has gone to the wall!"

"No!" Chapman answered, astonished. "Sure thing. He worked a crooked deal on the Peterson people, and they got after him. He's been in a bad game for years, and his finish is about to be. You know that Ruth had given him her entire fortune to handle, and it's gone—smash! Her uncle, old Butterfield, has retained us to help the good work along. I'm on my way after papers now to serve on Glosman. We want to save what we can. So long."

The chery young lawyer went out, leaving his friend in a state of mute astonishment.

Chapman and Glosman were, or perhaps it should be said, had been, bitter rivals for the regard of Ruth Minto. In the rivalry there had been good nature and friendly moves, but no love lost. Chapman, with the instinct of the trained lawyer, did not wholly look upon Glosman as an ideal business man, but he had never dreamed that Glosman had carried his schemes so far as deliberately to pull into his downfall the estate of the girl he loved. Glosman had been known as a daredevil in the market, but Chapman had not credited him with the character he evidently had.

The intrusting of the wealth her father left her to Glosman had been generally accepted as the proof of her preference. Chapman had so read it, and he had become a less frequent caller at the Minto home. There he still went, and was welcomed as an old friend, but not as a lover.

Now would things change? Her uncle, whom she had not consulted when she turned the money into Glosman's care, was evidently on the warpath, driven by his dislike of Glosman and his wish to show her that she had blundered in not calling in the aid of her relative.

He feared for her more than all. She was a girl of ideals, but her father had been a wild plunger in stocks. Intricate finance was his specialty. She would not condemn Glosman for his failure and she would readily believe that the rumors about him had been circulated by enemies; but if she knew he had violated the trust she had given him, it would be the blow supreme.

As Chapman thought, a wild desire surged through him—a longing to save her from the full realization that the man she had preferred was a man of practices not looked upon with favor in the business world. Chapman knew he was thinking of doing what was not justified, but he loved her; to him that seemed answer enough. He would spare her the shock that would tear down her ideals of men and life, and make her a woman where now she was a girl with all the trusting charm of girlhood.

Chapman telephoned for Sheffield and the latter came over from his office.

Chapman faced the keen, young lawyer. "Shef, I'm going to do a strange thing, you'll think. I want you to see to it that Glosman has not touched the trust fund."

The lawyer said nothing, but a slow light came into his eyes.

"I'm going to take what wealth I have, which will about equal the amount of her estate which Glosman sank, and I want you to see that arrangements are made with Glosman so that he can't hereafter touch the money for investment without your agreement and knowledge. I've got the papers made out here."

Sheffield stretched out in his chair and grasped, "Chap, you're a fool."

Chapman smiled, and then sobered suddenly. "No doubt; but I'm trying to keep the light of belief in the most trustful eyes in the world; I'm trying to keep love for her the thing she thinks it is."

"That sounds fine, all right, but it's wrong, all wrong," Sheffield said.

"Perhaps, but it's my wish. Will you carry it out?"

The lawyer's hands went slowly forward for the papers. "Yes, I'll take hold of this; I'll see that Glosman understands, and I'll see—how it ends," he answered.

Sheffield had no more than reached his office when he telephoned back: "Chap, old Butterfield has just left on his way to see Ruth. They aren't on the best of terms, as you know, and I'm afraid he'll make a dent in your scheme if—"

Chapman turned from the phone and five minutes later was racing in a taxicab for the Minto mansion. Fifteen minutes later he was ushered into a room where a girl, pale of face, came to him impulsively, her small hands twining themselves in the lapel of his coat, her eyes looking up into his with a great question, her lips asking it.

"Oh, Richard, it isn't true that Rob has wrecked his business and used what I trusted him with, is it?"

Near the window, a man of grim bearing, turned. "The girl won't believe me! I tell her that scamp has chucked her whole fortune into a hole, and there's no digging it up. He's a crook! Her fortune has gone to smash!"

The girl swayed against Richard, and he was glad of what he had done.

"Ruth, your uncle is mistaken in a way. I have knowledge that your fortune is intact!" Chapman answered.

She drew a long quivering breath of relief and leaned against him.

"Why, you—you—Mr. Chapman—"

"stuttered her uncle."

"That is true," answered Chapman smiling.

Butterfield picked up his hat and went out.

"Dick, I feel as if—if things were going on around me that I know nothing about," she said. "I heard the servants talking."

"Rumors fly thick and fast in the stock market, Ruth. Bob had been caught in the machine, but he'll climb out again, all right," he answered cheerily.

There was the sound of brakes clutching hard outside, and a little later Glosman came into the room. He stopped, his handsome face setting. He advanced and eyed Chapman.

"I suppose you have been telling her everything," he said between his teeth.

Chapman was startled at the change in the man, but he said quietly, "I have been assuring her that—that you have kept intact what has been entrusted to you."

Glosman stood dumb.

"That just what he has, Bob," the girl said, happily. "And it seems so good to know, for uncle was here, saying horrid things. It's all right, isn't it?"

Glosman's face to Chapman looked damp with the moisture of nervous tension, but the former smiled a fleeting smile. "Yes, everything will be all right. I'll win out yet!"

Chapman left them soon, and as he rode away, his thoughts were a little bitter. He had seen deeper into Glosman's character in those brief moments than all the months before. He was beginning to see that as a matter of right and wrong, he was doing wrong in enabling Glosman to hold her love and respect; yet, even as he questioned his action, he added to his thought the word—perhaps.

Glosman had seemed a man of honor, always, but one likely to play for big stakes; what he had done in incurring the anger of the Peterson group was not wholly culpable, Chapman argued with himself, but his disregard of her interests was.

He found a call at his office, asking him to go again to the Minto home, and wondering, he turned about and went back.

When he faced her again he found her standing, white and stern in her girlish dignity. She took him by the arm in a way that he had always as-associated with her, and led him to a chair beside the desk. She pointed to the figures on it. "Richard, I asked Rob to let me help him figure on how he could start again, and I offered him the use of my money; but he acted so funny about it—why, we just quarreled, and I saw a side of him I had never seen before. He said things—bad things—and I had to tell him to go."

Chapman bent his head. "That's too bad; but I've wished it a long time," he said in a slow voice. She caught her breath, and it quivered a little as she said, "I've lost my respect for him, and I never really loved him, but I tried, for you seemed to like me just as a friend."

Chapman straightened suddenly. "But you welcomed him more—"

"Because he asked more," she interrupted.

"May I have a chance to ask once more?"

"Do you need a further chance, Dick?" she asked.

Good for the Children

There's a wealth of health in every can of Rona Cocoa. It's good for growing children—invigorating—nutritious—muscle-building.

Rona Cocoa is made in Holland by the old Dutch process. The indigestible fibre is taken out, freeing it from sediment—making it soothing—delicious. That's why Rona Cocoa dissolves instantly in boiling water. No trouble to make it.

VAN HOUTEN'S RONA DUTCH COCOA

Best of all, Rona Cocoa costs only half as much as domestic cocoas, because it goes twice as far. You use only one-half a teaspoonful to the cup. It's economical—a 25c can makes 64 cups. Children like it—it's so nourishing food.

Ask your grocer for Rona—the Dutch Cocoa in the big red can. Use it as a beverage or for cakes, puddings, fudges, or sauces. You'll like the rich, Dutch, chocolate flavor. Two Sizes: 10c and 25c.

WISCONSIN TRIBE GETS POOR DEAL

Black River Falls Man Says Badger Winnebagoes Are Entitled to More Than Award

That the Wisconsin branch of the Winnebago Indians are deprived by a ruling of the state department of $37,030.24, and charged up with $30,639.83 to which they are entitled, is the claim of A. P. Jones of Black River Falls, in a communication to The Tribune. Mr. Jones backs up his statement by quoting an extract from a report of the secretary of the interior concerning the disposal of the Winnebago Indians' tribal funds.

The disposal of the Indians' tribal funds was recently decided by the interior department, and Mr. Jones is of the opinion that the Wisconsin tribe has been given "the short end." His letter to the secretary of the interior follows:

"The Honorable, the Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C.
"Sir: At the request of several Wisconsin Winnebago Indians I have the honor to address you with reference to certain financial differences between the two branches of the Winnebago tribe which have been adjusted as authorized by the act approved July 1, 1912, (37 Stat. L. 187), of which adjustment the Wisconsin Winnebagoes have recently been informed.

"It is noticed that the sum of $30,639.83 has been charged to the Wisconsin branch and that this amount has been deducted from their share of the tribal funds and placed to the credit of the Nebraska band. Department letter, 'Finance-Bookkeeping, 77,245-1912, 80,242-1912, 132,272-1912, P. G. adjustment of funds of Winnebago Indians of Nebraska and Wisconsin,' in giving the reason for this charge states on page 14:

"A careful examination has been made of the records of the office and also of the accounts of the disbursing officers who handled the accounts of these Indians, and it was found that there was expended in the removal of the Wisconsin Winnebagoes, from the $82,000 authorized from tribal funds by the act of June 22, 1874, the sum of $67,670.07. Based on the census provided by the act approved January 18, 1881, their share of the $82,000 amounts to $37,030.24, and consequently the excess expended for their exclusive benefit, namely, $30,639.83 should be credited to the Nebraska branch. It is recommended that the latter amount be so credited to equalize to the Nebraska branch the amount expended for those in Wisconsin."

Matter of Record
"As a matter of record the entire expense of the removal of the stray bands of Winnebagoes in Wisconsin to the reservation in Nebraska in 1873 were all paid from gratuity appropriations made by the acts of July 15, 1870, (16 Stat. L. 359),

May 29, 1872, (17 Stat. L. 190), and February 14, 1873, (17 Stat. L. 4-610). The removal of these stray bands had been effected in 1873, the expenses of such removal had been paid and a considerable portion of the Winnebagoes so removed had returned to Wisconsin previous to the passage of the act of June 22, 1874, (18 Stat. L. 170). The records of the Indian office will show that of the $82,000 appropriated from tribal funds by this act, $30,639.87 was paid for 12,347.55 acres of land purchased from the Omaha Indians as recorded in Indian deeds, Vol. 6 (M 5-E) page 215. Thirty-six thousand, six hundred and one dollars and twenty cents was expended in the improvement of this land by the erection of houses, breaking, fencing, the purchase of farm implements, seed, furniture, horses, stock, etc., for the Indians who settled on this land. There was no legal division of the Winnebago tribe into the Nebraska and Wisconsin divisions until 1883, ten years after the removal and from six to eight years after the expenditure from this $82,000. At the time of the division of the tribe in 1883, all of the land, the houses and practically all property purchased with this $82,000 of tribal funds became the property of the Nebraska band. It was virtually an expenditure for the exclusive benefit of the Nebraska branch and not for the Wisconsin band as stated. It would seem as though the Wisconsin branch should have been credited with its proportionate share of the $82,000, namely, $37,030.24, and not be charged up with $30,639.83 as has been done.

Credited Nebraska
"Your attention is respectfully called to a statement issued by the Indian office February 4, 1910, which shows that the Nebraska band had received credit as follows:
"June 2, 1876.—By amounts expended in removal to Nebraska in 1873 and subsistence of Wisconsin Winnebagoes (Ledger 19, p. 148) $35,886.73."

"In a letter from the Indian office to Senator Clapp, chairman of the senate committee on Indian affairs, dated February 21, 1911, 'Finance-Bookkeeping, 100,925-1910, P. G. considerable space is devoted to explaining the authority for this charge and concludes on page 10:
"The foregoing explains why the expenses of removal of the Wisconsin Winnebagoes were charged to them in the adjustment of the indebtedness under the provisions of the act of January 18, 1881 (21 Stat. L. 315)."

"The letter from which this quotation was taken forms the principle part of the report furnished by the secretary of the interior to congress for consideration in connection with the act approved July 1, 1912, (37 Stat. L. 187)."

"If the contradictions in the statements from the Indian office and the apparent injustice of the charge of $30,639.83 against the Wisconsin band can be satisfactorily explained it will be greatly appreciated by the Wisconsin Winnebagoes and their friends among the whites.
"Very respectfully,
"A. P. JONES."

FORDNEY KICKS ON UNDERWOOD TARIFF

Michigan Representative Sets Up Cry of Disaster for Farmer and Laborer

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Severe criticism of the democratic tariff revision was made today by Representative Fordney of Michigan, the veteran republican tariff maker. The following was his written reply to the statement prepared for the United Press on Tuesday by Representative Francis Burton Harrison (Dem.) of New York, his colleague on the ways and means committee:

(By Representative Joseph Fordney, Written for the United Press.)
"I passed in its present form, I believe the Underwood bill will be most disastrous to farmers and laborers. The principal protection of United States labor and capital is practically disregarded on the chief products of farms and factories of the country. I firmly believe it will not tend to better conditions of the people, but will have a very opposite effect. I hope I am unduly alarmed."

An objection to this bill is the reduction of revenue. The income tax feature will not yield as much revenue as will be lost by the proposed reductions in tariff rates, unless importations of foreign goods greatly increase, and in such an event our farmers, our manufacturers, and especially our laborers will suffer, as was the case under the Wilson bill. The bill proposes more severe reductions than those of the Wilson bill. It proposes to place flour and many agricultural products on the free list and to reduce rates on all other agricultural products to a point that will permit heavy importations from neighboring foreign countries.

LA CROSSE RIVER NEAR FLOOD STAGE

West Track of Bridge Is Sinking; Cannot Be Repaired Until Water Recedes

ROAD MAY DISCONTINUE PASSES

Road Officials Say They Face New Expense if "Full Crew" Bill Becomes Law

With the recent rising of the La Crosse river, fear is again felt for railroad bridges, although the river is not expected to rise more than a few inches above its depths at the present time. Yesterday it reached within eleven inches of its stage a few weeks ago.

Bridge carpenters of the Milwaukee reported this morning that the west track of the bridge over the La Crosse river is sinking. They say that they cannot determine whether it is in danger. It cannot be repaired until the water recedes. All trains are running on slow orders over the bridge.

If the proposed "full crew" bills that are being pushed by railroad employees throughout the country should become law, the railroads may discontinue the issuance of passes to families of employees.

In commenting on the subject the president of one of the large roads entering Chicago said:

"The effect of full crew legislation is to make it necessary to employ more men and thereby to increase operating expenses. Such laws, in the opinion of railroad officers, are both unnecessary and burdensome. The net revenues of most railroads are not large enough to justify increases in expenses."

"The elimination of passes to employes and their families seems like most feasible and satisfactory method of meeting the situation."

MISS VERKET IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT

The Young People's society of the Norwegian Lutheran church, Division and Sixth streets, held their annual business meeting Wednesday night. They had a very large meeting and practically all the members turned out to elect their candidates to offices for the coming term, which begins immediately. The meeting, carried on in regular parliamentary style, was made very snappy. The discussion about the merits of the several candidates often rose to a high pitch, but finally the society agreed on the candidates and after rendering a vote of thanks to the retiring officers the meeting was adjourned. The results of the balloting are as follows:

President—Miss Borghild Verket.
Vice president, Miss Nora Johnson.
Treasurer, Mr. Joe Stokke.
The retiring officers have given the society a very prosperous administration during the last year with the hearty co-operation of the members. The prospects for a successful administration in the future by the newly elected officers are very brilliant.

A large number of officials from the different roads throughout the north-west attended. Mr. Meyers was well known, as many of the officials of the officials of the Milwaukee knew him when an operator at Prairie du Chien.

LA CROSSE BOATS TO BE INSPECTED

Government Orders Revenue Officers to Investigate Conditions on the Rivers

SEEK GREATER SAFETY TO LIFE

Violations of Law to Be Severely Punished, Says the Bulletin Received

Systematic inspection of vessels and a thorough investigation of the conditions on government controlled waters in this district during the coming season have been ordered by the department of commerce, according to an official bulletin received by Deputy Revenue Officer J. S. Medary of La Crosse, from Edward Schultz, customs inspector at Milwaukee.

The department has placed sufficient funds at the disposal of the collector of customs for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of the navigation laws.

During the year 1912 there were few cases of violations reported in comparison to the preceding year of 1911, when an unusual number of violations occurred, involving penalties ranging from $10 to $800.

Inspector Coming

An inspector from the Milwaukee office will visit many places along the Mississippi river, also the Fox and Wolf rivers, and Lake Winnebago, during the coming season. It is intended that he will enlist the co-operation of the various motorboat clubs, and other organizations interested, to encourage the enforcement of the provisions of the navigation laws, in line with the department's request.

As the laws pertaining to water craft are pretty well understood by this time, it is the intention of the department that future cases of violation will not be dealt with so leniently as in the past, many penalties having been mitigated when violations occurred through ignorance of the law.

Seek Greater Safety

It is hoped that by this plan of co-operation the attention of all interested persons may be secured to the end that few actual cases of violation may be found, and with the result of greater safety to life and property on the waters of this district.

Rheumatism Affects Lungs

Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Phthisis, Asthma and Anemia Often Directly the Result of Rheumatic Blood.

If you have a persistent, nagging bronchial cough beware of cough remedies. They are merely local in action, and if they do relieve it is the narcotics that do it. What you require is a blood purifier, a searching antidote that removes from the circulation the acid poisons that by their reflexes attack all weakened, susceptible spots and thus create local symptoms. The very best remedy known is Swift's Sure Specific. You will find it on sale in any drug store at $1.00 per bottle. It goes straight into the blood, becomes an internal blood bath, wonderfully increases the red corpuscles, cures all the local fever spots and irritations, increases appetite, you take on flesh and feel a wonderful sense of renewed strength. Hundreds of people worried beyond control at cough, pains in the chest, sore throat and constant expectation of thick mucous have after experience the most wonderful change after using S. S. S. All doubt and apprehension is gone, those peculiar pains and aches vanish, there follows a period of most intense rejoicing to find that worst fears were based entirely upon a mistaken notion that cough and chest pains come from the lungs. These are rheumatic conditions and you will quickly realize it after using S. S. S. for a few days. Get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day at the drug store and then say good-by to all those pains that have worried you.

TALKFEST ENDS IN HOUSE ADJOURNING

Lower Body of Congress Recesses Until Monday to Let Democrats Settle Tariff

WASHINGTON, April 11.—After an hour's "political talkfest" yesterday in which the only business transacted was the organization of five committees, the house adjourned until Monday to enable the democrats to complete if possible their tariff caucus.

Representative Cooper of Wisconsin started the debate by criticizing the republican plan of having Minority Leader Mann choose committee assignments for the party.

"I have known speakers to pack committees, to defeat legislation demanded by the country," he declared.

Progressive Leader Murdock lauded the progressives' plan of having a committee on committees. Representative Madden of Illinois "inspired" to the extent of approving open caucuses and deploring the "one man rule" of Representative Mann.

Mann sought to get a rise out of Majority Leader Underwood by twitting him for "taking orders on tariff revision from the white house," but the Alabama member refused to rise to the bait.

Representative Lenroot, former insurgent, defended the republican plan, declaring the party would never return to Cannonism.

ESCAPE WITH BODY

LAWYERS TAKE WILL AND REMAINS OF AGED MILLIONAIRE AND OUTWIT THREE SHERIFFS

DENVER, Col., April 11.—Attorney James Harris and Dr. William Heisen, counsel and attending physician of Alonzo Thompson, aged spiritualist who died in Denver Wednesday, outwitted three sheriffs who held warrants for their arrest and fled from the state with Thompson's body and will, purporting to convey more than $1,000,000 worth of property. They defied an order of the court which commanded the production of the documents before Judge Rothgerber.

The escape was made on the Burlington railroad's St. Louis Limited. Thompson's body is being taken to Belleville, Ill., the home of his brother, for burial.

NO VIOLENCE PLANNED

BELGIAN GENERAL WALKOUT LEADERS WILL TRY TO AVOID CALLING OUT OF TROOPS

BRUSSELS, April 11.—When the socialist workmen of all Belgium go out on strike for manhood suffrage next Monday, there will be no violence, Camille Huysmans, who will command the strikers, told the United Press today: "We will have no bloodshed and no violence," Huysmans said. "The men will simply stop work and walk out. Not all the railroad men will strike. We do not wish to tie up the railways, for they are government owned, and we desire to give the government no excuse for calling out troops."

STOMACH MISERY JUST VANISHES

No Indigestion, Gas or Sourness after taking "Pape's Diapepsin"

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

BRANDEIS URGES VALUATION BILL

"People's Lawyer" Champions Pet Measure of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin

ADVOCATES A FEDERAL BUREAU

Says Public Should Know if Money Paid to the Railroads Is Honestly Spent

BOSTON, Mass., April 11.—Louis D. Brandeis, the "people's lawyer" who once declared he could save the railroads of the country millions of dollars every day, in a statement written for the United Press, today championed Senator La Follette's act providing for the physical valuation of railroads by the interstate commerce commission. He insisted that before the people can know whether the money they pay to railroads is honestly and necessarily spent, interlocking directorates must be abolished and a federal bureau of railroad costs established.

Mr. Brandeis charges that J. P. Morgan & Company and other bankers have a monopoly of selling to many railroads the money they need, at rates of the bankers' own fixing.

(By Louis D. Brandeis)

The La Follette act providing for the physical valuation of railroads by the interstate commerce commission, is a great step forward. The senator's seven-year fight has been nobly won. The act is but another application of La Follette's favorite motto—"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

Everybody admits that the value of railroad property is one of the elements to be taken into consideration by the interstate commerce commission in fixing rates, and everybody has been obliged to admit that the commission was without reliable data bearing upon this value. Under the La Follette act the public will at least be furnished with the best evidence of value available.

But there is more truth which must be known before La Follette's task of securing to the people just railroad rates, is completed. To secure just and reasonable rates, other steps must be taken. We must know, besides the actual value of railroad property, the actual cost of operation and the cost of current construction and of new equipment. The railroad reports give us now a statement of what they spend each year; but the public has no means of knowing whether this amount has been well spent.

In the calendar year 1912 the railroads collected from the American people in gross earnings, $3,045,778,327, most of which has been spent in some way. About one-third of that amount has gone in interest and dividends and taxes. The physical valuation would help us to know what part of that interest and dividends is paid on capital which is water. About two-thirds of the year's revenues is paid out for operating expenses. It is at least equally important to know what part of that revenue has been spent unnecessarily; what part has been wasted through dishonesty, what part through inefficiency. Besides the $2,000,000,000 of current revenues spent in operation, there are each year expended hundreds of millions in new construction or the purchase of equipment. What part of the money spent for new construction or equipment is efficiently and honestly spent? Until we know all this, we cannot know whether rates are just and reasonable.

Hits Interlocking Directorates

The fact that a railroad company has paid out money has ceased to be assurance that it was necessarily paid out. Interlocking directorates may have led to the making of many contracts unnecessarily burdensome to the railroads; for on many of our railroads interlocking directorates control a large part of the expenditure.

J. P. Morgan & Co. and other banks, have a monopoly of selling many railroads the money they need at rates of the bankers' own fixing. Directors of the steel trust are directors of railroad companies, owning over one-half of the total railroad mileage in the United States. Directors of equipment companies have places likewise on boards of railroad companies. The United States Commissioner of Corporations has shown how the Standard Oil Trust compelled nearly every railroad in the country to purchase its oil at extortionate prices.

Before the railroads can know what expenditures are needful, the great step taken in the La Follette Physical Valuation act must be supplemented by two others: First—Interlocking directorates must be abolished; second—A federal bureau of railroad costs must be established, through which the actual and necessary cost of operating each railroad can be determined.

ONE YEAR OLD

George Seward Burton having arrived at the one year old period, the event was duly observed yesterday afternoon at the home of his grand mother, Mrs. D. A. McDonald, by his mother, Mrs. Munson Burton, who invited in a few little children to celebrate the event. The little guests in their dainty little suits of white arrived at an early hour, each bringing a suspicious little parcel which they presented to the young host, which he received with much dignity. Each child was accompanied by some older person each eager to display the charms and accomplishments of their little charge. The table was prettily centered by a handsome birthday cake lighted with pink tapers set in rosebud holders and half smothered in a nest of smilax. All behaved with great propriety and were a credit to their fond mothers. The host presided at the head of the table and dispensed the viands with a liberal hand. Those present were Jane Elizabeth Tschanner, Virginia Leigh Toland, John Toland, Robert Lees, Marie Louise Holley, Joseph Losey and Beverly Carrington.

SOCIETY

YEOMEN DOINGS

The Brotherhood of American Yeomen held their regular meeting in Linker hall Tuesday evening. After the business session, the members and invited friends enjoyed dancing until a late hour, with the excellent music which was furnished by the Yeomen orchestra.

The month of May has been set aside as ladies' month in the Brotherhood of American Yeomen. A ladies' campaign has been started in La Crosse, as well as in the rest of the jurisdiction and a number of applications have already been written for the large class to be taken in at that time, when a full degree team of ladies will put on the initiatory work, assisted by the young ladies' drill team. Mr. Koch, grand foreman of the order of Des Moines, Iowa, has promised to be present on that occasion.

It was decided by the unanimous vote of the homestead Tuesday evening to send Mrs. Lee, the captain of the drill team, to the national convention at Oklahoma City in June.

The B. A. Yeomen, the Rowent circle and Ladies' drill team will give a joint May ball in Linker hall May 22. Invitations will be given out for the occasion.

The Rowena circle will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday afternoon. Cards will be played after the meeting.

Smart Models for Spring Costumes.

Edited by
May Manton

WHETHER in deference to the disturbance in the East or not, a great deal of red and rich blue will be worn throughout the spring season and even carried over into the summer. Trimmings will be sumptuously rich in effect, and a great many jewels and beads will be introduced. The keynote of the Balkan idea is a rather bright, somewhat crude color which, however happily it may be used, nevertheless retains something of its crudity.

Even laces show the introduction of color, and there are numberless bandings that are enriched with jewels and rich colored threads to produce a really sumptuous result. Fabrics take many forms but silks and cottons predominate. All crêpe effects are essentially smart; moirés are much liked, poplin weaves are all in vogue and there are new ribbed effects and brocades that are really wonderful.

A great deal of lace is to be used as trimming and for entire gowns. Draped effects are conspicuous upon handsome toilettes, and we are altogether offered a season of consummate charm both in materials and in styles.

AFTERNOON costumes this season are the most graceful and charming imaginable. All sorts of marvelously beautiful fabrics are being worn and they are draped to give exquisite folds while the lines are charming. In the illustration are shown designs that are in every way reliable and satisfactory and which set forth the most salient features. As will be seen at a glance, silk is especially smart while brocaded effects and semi-oriental effects are conspicuous.

THE two long coats illustrated are one designed for the mature folk and one for young girls and small women. Both are admirable. It is a season of wraps and coats of the kind will be worn during the afternoon hours at resorts as well as during the evening, for the drive in the carriage or motor and for a great many occasions. Kimono sleeves are the favorites for they do not rumple the gown beneath, but the new coats are rendered interesting and distinctive by the straight lines, by the color effects and, in many instances, by the drapery. The long undraped coat shown here, for example, is made of plain cotton in a soft shade of tan and is lined throughout with really beautiful Cubist silk. The young girl's coat is made of black charmeuse satin with collar, cuffs and lining of coral pink.

ACCORDION plaits have become so important as to be especially worthy of notice. They are used for all the fashionable thin materials and they make the most attractive costumes. The one shown at the extreme left is among the best offered. The skirt is just slightly circular and the plaits take extremely pretty lines. The bodice is effectively and becomingly shaped and finished and altogether the costume is a really fascinating one. It is especially well liked developed in the favorite crêpe.

THE long tapering skirt drapery, or what might be called the elongated panel is being much used now. The central figure of the group shows a skirt of this kind with a very novel bodice that includes a Medici collar and a deep girdle. It is an exceedingly handsome costume and one that can be treated in a good many ways. The figured silk over the plain satin makes a very handsome effect and certainly is smart but it is easy to think of the gown adapted to evening occasions by cutting the bodice with a low square neck and the sleeves shorter. The shoulder draperies are very pretty and, as the outer edges are straight, they can be made from lace. For dinner and evening wear, the bodice and skirt drapery of brocaded crêpe with the shoulder draperies of lace and the skirt of satin would be exceedingly beautiful.

YOUNG girls never were more prettily dressed than at the present time. The two figures that stand arm in arm exemplify extremely pretty little frocks that are essentially smart yet essentially youthful. The lingerie dress is made of cotton voile, the skirt consisting of flouncing while the bodice is trimmed in harmony. Since the season offers almost numberless beautiful bordered fabrics, the straight skirt has many uses. Voile is an unquestioned favorite but there are a great many materials that can be treated in lingerie style, crêpe de chine and China silk as well as the linen and cotton ones.

PANIER styles are much liked by young girls and the next little frock is unusually pretty. The panier drapery takes very graceful lines and beneath is just a two-piece skirt. In the picture, the skirt is covered by lace flouncing which is always dainty and charming, but it can be left plain or it would be pretty with a flounce of accordion plaited chiffon over it with the space between the paniers filled in with lace above the plaiting.

NEVER were brocades so beautiful and never were they so generally worn. The next gown of the group shows brocaded charmeuse combined with plain crêpe de chine. It is very lovely. The combination of materials is exquisite and the gown one of the most graceful possible. The bodice gives evidence of the little over blouse idea that is so fashionable and the skirt is draped at the front and sides in the most interesting and attractive way.

THE last gown illustrated is trimmed with very beautiful Bulgarian banding showing jeweled effects and these bandings are in the height of style. As illustrated, the gown itself is made of soft gray crêpe de chine and the Oriental banding on that background is wonderful. The girdle of beads is noteworthy, too. As will be noted, both the skirt and the bodice are the same as those shown in the center of the group but, in this instance, the neck is cut square, the sleeves are short and the drapery of the skirt is left free in place of being drawn into points. Unlike as the two costumes appear at a glance, they were evolved from the same model.

FASHION NOTES OF INTEREST. MENTION was made last week of the very remarkable use of brilliant color and of certain manifestations resulting therefrom. Week by week, the tendency becomes emphasized and just because it may easily be pushed to an extreme, it seems well to consider it from the artistic standpoint. Colors are not alone brilliant, they are unusual. A noted importer returned from Paris asserts that even the most conservative women will give indications of the influence for, if the gowns are of subdued tones, they will be trimmed or lined with bright hues. He further states that, in the great ateliers of fashion, artists are to be found fairly flinging colors upon canvas until the exact tint desired is obtained. As a result of such treatment, we are having the most marvelously beautiful shades of all colors and many to which it is difficult to give a name. Again, many of the stain glass effects or particular fabrics have been reproduced from accidents of the painter's palette and any one who has watched an artist at work will realize how many possibilities are involved in that fact; but, while we have a great deal of vivid color, while we have much that is extreme, much that makes the thoughtful stop and consider, we also have much that is really beautiful. What the French call the "composed costumes" or those that are made of contrasting fabrics are many of them extremely beautiful while not a few of the costumes trimmed with really bright colors are distinctive, so cleverly are the hues handled. There is no occasion for alarm even in the most conservative mind. It is quite possible to be well dressed and smartly dressed without doing anything ultra or making one's self unpleasantly conspicuous.

An exceedingly beautiful street costume is made with skirt of goblin blue matelassé and jacket of broadcloth in the same color while there is an accompanying bodice of chiffon cloth with just bits of the matelassé that connect it with the skirt. The skirt is cut in only two pieces and overlapped at front and back. The little jacket is one of the indescribable ones with sharply pointed revers and much cutaway fronts and unusual lines but, at the longest, it just covers the hips and it includes a waistcoat of the matelassé. Fancy jackets are being extensively used for these dressy costumes and extremely beautiful they are. While they are of different material, they nevertheless, belong to the gown for there is always some connecting bit of trimming or something of the sort. A most attractive suit of navy blue moiré shows a coat, which evidently owes its inspiration to the dandies of the Directoire period, combined with a rather simple skirt. The coat, which makes the subject of interest, combines a short bolero front with long postillion back. It includes a waistcoat of white moiré. The jacket blouses a little at the waist line and the postillion tails form a straight panel below the full portion, while, at the top of the panel, there is a V-shaped portion heavily braided and the rather wide collar of white moiré also is braided with silk cord and finished with a band of the blue. There are revers of the blue silk and, it is important to add that the kimono sleeves are in three-quarter length and slashed a little to show plaitings of lace. Unquestionably kimono sleeves are sleeves set-in at the drooping line are exceedingly smart for dressy costumes of this sort, although it is not possible to lay down the law for coats of more severe, simple lines are showing set-in sleeves and also sleeves with a few gathers at the shoulder edges. A very handsome tailored costume of broadcloth is in a beautiful shade of taupe with revers of white satin and the collar of real grass green while it is trimmed with a little braiding of silk cord, for braiding in soutache and in cord is being shown on many of the handsomest costumes. It is a revival and one that promises to be much used. Since the braid is always handsome, it has been eagerly welcomed and is promised extensive vogue. The particular suit referred to shows a very simple pattern and simple styles are apt to be the more effective. A very novel costume is made of silk Bedford cord with a little coat rather lavishly trimmed in chiffon in the same color braided with silk cord in a semi-Oriental design and, of various ways, evidence of braiding has appeared.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, April 11.—More encouraging reports concerning the crops gave the market a slightly bearish tone today though foreign cables on the whole were bullish. Local export sales helped the buyers. May opened firm and up 1/4c but was easier later in the day and dropped 1/4c before noon. July declined 1/4c. Corn was firm at noon and up 1/4c over the day's opening for both months. Reports that bad weather is delaying farm work constitute the principal bull factor.

Oats was firm at the opening with buyers and sellers maneuvering for an advantage in a market where offerings were very light. Toward noon both months eased off 1/4c.

The small run of hogs at the yards gave the provision market a strong undertone.

Advances of 1/4c by both May and July corn was the most decided movement in the afternoon trading. Other grain options and prices for the provision list remained practically the same as at noon.

RECOMMEND PARCEL POST SYSTEM

General Reform Urged in Currency, Banking and Credit Systems

CHICAGO, April 11.—The national conference on marketing and farm credits yesterday afternoon adopted resolutions urging the United States government to appoint a bureau for the study of marketing problems; the various systems of farm credits and rational methods of meeting the needs of the farmers.

The state governments, universities and farm journals were also urged to give the farmers' problems attention. A committee will be appointed to present the resolutions to President Wilson.

Want Co-operation.
The conference went on record as favoring co-operation of farmers and consumers, under proper supervision, to promote efficient distribution and economical marketing. The executive committee was authorized to arrange an international conference on marketing and farm credits in San Francisco in 1915.

The parcel post system was highly recommended and its extension by the government urged. A resolution was adopted favoring the more public distribution of crop experts, as a remedy for congested markets in one part of the country and a shortage of supply in another. The teaching of business organization as applied to agriculture was urged upon all universities.

Necessitates Reform.
A resolution on farm credits urged the necessity of a general reform in the currency, banking and credit systems. The conference held that the national plan must encompass facilities for securing wide circulation of notes for farmers and business men and state and federal law for organizing co-operate credit associations.

The congress adjourned today after deciding to meet in Chicago the second week in April, 1914.

SENDS WORD TO WARN MEXICANS

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Secretary of War Garrison today wired Major Reed of the Ninth cavalry patrolling the Mexican border, to warn Mexican insurgents and federalists against shooting into United States territory. The secretary's action was based on the report of a dispatch from Major Reed informing the department that two of his men, a trooper and a teamster, had been wounded by stray Mexican shots.

Secretary of State Bryan was closeted with Secretary Garrison today in a discussion over the Mexican situation. No statement was made by either after the conference.
